Stang, Schwenk Nominated on GOP Ticket

Mayor Gets Praise for His Record

Running Mate In Post 14 Years

Mayor Frederick H. Stang, now completing his second year in the office, was renominated last night in the Republican city convention at the court house and John J. Schwenk, who had previously served as alderman-at-large, was named as his running mate.

Vincent G. Connelly, former city chairman, nominated Mayor Stang and Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, who recently announced he would not be a candidate for re-election, nominated Schwenk, who had served 16 years in the Common Council, 14 of which he was alderman-at-large.

MAYOR STANG, in accepting the nomination, noted that "The job of mayor is not an easy one," but, he said, "I enjoy the work because I love Kingston, and want to see it maintain its dignity, and, at the same time, progress."

Schwenk, in his acceptance, called attention to "the excellent record," of Mayor Stang, and said he would do everything possible to assist him in carrying out the progressive program, which he felt the mayor would continue giving to the city.

N. LeVan Haver, Republican city chairman, presided at the session, and Robert A. Snyder was clerk.

Mayor Stang's nomination was seconded first by Fifth Ward Alderman Samuel J. Perry, who was followed in the seconding by Benjamin Schecter, water board commissioner, and City Clerk Bernhardt S. Kramer.

FORMER 12th Ward Alderman Victor Roth, Seymour Werbalowsky and Donald G. Moore, of the third ward, seconded the nomination of Schwenk.

Mayor Stang said he accepted his nomination with "thanks and a deep sense of humility."

Two years ago, he noted, "you took me at my word, and now I am happy to say that I have a record to back up my promises. It is very difficult and sometimes embarrassing to talk about one's self," he said, "but in this business of politics, at times it becomes necessary."

His almost two years of experience, he said, "cannot be measured in dollars and cents, but will certainly endure to the benefit of the taxpayers of this city, if I am re-elected."

THE MAYOR'S job is not an easy one, he said, "and when you consider the extra-curricular activities that are part and parcel of the mayor's job, it makes for a pretty full day and night.

The administration's program, he noted, "has been varied and interesting. Some of the results are known to you all. Citing the Kingston Point Beach as one bringing "great relief and pleasure to the people of our city," he said, "I have certain plans and other projects, that, if elected, I would like to complete, and other new plans for projects that I would like to set in motion."

"I have had the pleasure of meeting a great many of our citizens during the past two years, many of whom have come to the office at city hall, which is always open, as well as those with whom I have talked on the telephone or at various other places in the city.

"What has been accomplished was not altogether the work of one man. I have had excellent cooperation from the department heads, the men and women in the various departments, Joe Kelly, my good right arm, and the members of the Common Council. We have worked together as a team and they are entitled to a great deal of credit for their unselfish cooperation. I want to at this time publicly thank them all for their help.

"IF WE ARE to be successful in this campaign, it means that there must be the fullest cooperation by everyone concerned. There must be the will to win coupled with the desire

Tire Firm Buys RKO Pictures

$25 Million Cash Deal Made for Stock

New York, July 19 (AP)—A new giant rose in the entertainment world today with a tire manufacturer's purchase of RKO Radio Pictures Inc. for 25 million dollars cash.

By the terms of a contract signed yesterday, General Tire & Rubber Co., Thomas F. O'Neil will turn over the money to Howard Hughes next Monday.

IT SURPASSES even the whopping $23,489,478 personal check Hughes signed only 16 months ago to buy out 3,814,913 shares of RKO stock and become first sole owner of a major studio in moviedom's history.

O'Neil, genial, 40-year-old son of General Tire's founder, W. O. O'Neil, is a vice president of the tire company and president of General Teleradio, Inc., a wholly-owned entertainment subsidiary.

General Teleradio owns four TV stations and five radio stations outright and controls three important radio networks, the Yankee in New England, Mutual in the east and mid-west and Don Lee on the west coast.

THE ANSWER to the questions of what is one of the world's five leading tire manufacturers doing in the radio, TV and movie business is diversification.

One source estimated General Tire's worth at 215 million dollars.

In addition to its entertainment holdings, General Tire has diversified itself into the plastic sheeting and film business—it claims to be a prime supplier of these products for auto interiors; chemicals, leather goods and rocket motors, components and propellants.

NOT THE LEAST of O'Neil's acquisitions in the RKO deal is a library of 400 to 600 old films never seen on TV.

He's an old hand at that.

Ohioville Car Mishap Injures 4

Four persons were injured about 10 p. m. yesterday when a 1948 sedan, out of control on the North Ohioville road about two miles east of Ohioville, struck a large rock and turned over.

Two of the passengers, admitted to Kingston Hospital, were reported in "good" condition this morning. The other two were treated and released.

Admitted to the hospital were Frank Devito, 20, of 191 North 5th, Brooklyn, who suffered abrasions of the knee and lacerations of the ear, and Anthony Sorentino, 20, of 89 Havermier street, Brooklyn, with a ruptured bladder and lacerations of the arm.

Treated and released were Theresa Fortunato, 19, of 649 Metropolitan avenue, Brooklyn, reported by troopers to have received a possible rib fracture, and Anna Randazzo, 19, of 380 Metropolitan avenue, Brooklyn, reported to have suffered lacerations and a possible rib fracture.

Highland State Police reported that the car, operated by Miss Randazzo, was traveling south when she was blinded by

Two of Tanker Crew Rescued

Port Ewen Men in Boat Pull Pair From River

Two crew members of a tanker anchored in the Hudson river off Port Ewen were pulled from the water late last night after clinging to a life preserver for more than an hour.

The two men, Joseph A. Strosky, 32, of Jacksonville, Fla., and George Cornelius, 22, of Rock Valley, Long Eddy, were reported to have suffered exhaustion and shock. They were returned to the ship, called the Dormoset, skippered by Ivan Ivyahl, and were treated on board.

ACCORDING to troopers of the Highland State Police, Strosky fell overboard about 10 p. m. and Cornelius took a life preserver and leaped in after him

Troopers said the two men drifted away from the tanker on the river's currents, moving upstream.

Their cries for help were heard by George Trinkle of Port Ewen, whose home is located on the river a short distance from the Church of the Presentation. Mr. Trinkle notified troopers of the Highland station.

A BOAT owned by Richard Gilligan of Port Ewen shoved off to hunt for the men. With Mr. Gilligan were Mr. Trinkle, Lou Linn and Vincent Fairbrother, all of Port Ewen.

A lifeboat was launched from the tanker and joined the Gilligan boat in the search.

Mrs. Josephine Horvers of Port Ewen, a sister of Mr. Trinkle, said the cries of help were so loud some people heard them as far off as Route 9W.

When the two men were located by the party in the

Nehru Says Red China Must Talk

Calls for Parley After Geneva Date

New Delhi, India, July 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru said today an international conference—with Communist China attending—"will have to be held" sometime after the Geneva summit talks to discuss Far Eastern issues.

The Indian premier told a crowded news conference he had no idea when or where such a parley might be held or who besides the Chinese Reds would be represented.

FAR EAST ISSUES, including Formosa, constitute a "more explosive" problem at present than Germany, Nehru said, and therefore cannot be ignored at Geneva.

But since Red China is not present at the summit meeting, he continued, the Big Four can hold only "initial" discussions on east Asian problems.

Soviet Premier Bulganin raised the issues of Formosa and Red Chinese representation at the UN at the opening Geneva sessions yesterday, but the U. S. delegation was reported opposed to widening the conference beyond Europe.

NEHRU SAID India did not care whether it was present at a later conference on the Far East but that it would help in "informal approaches" to arrange such a meeting. In this connection, he added, his chief foreign policy aide, V. K. Krishna Menon, "might have to return to Washington."

Menon on July 7 concluded a month's stay in the United States during which he discussed the possibility of U. S.-Red China negotiations over Formosa with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

Asked whether Menon, who is now in London, might go to Geneva, Nehru replied, "I cannot say where he will go next."

Nehru described the start of the summit conference yesterday as "promising." He declared these were his "minimum" hopes: "Creation of a definite, precise friendly atmosphere, attempts to settle things by negotiation, renunciation of threatening language by either side."

IN THE COURSE of the 80-minute conference Nehru was

Biting Dog Must Have 7-Day Test

If a person is bitten by a dog the dog should not be destroyed, Dr. Dudley Hargrave, Ulster county commissioner of health, cautioned this morning.

He explained that a dog must be kept under observation for seven days in order to determine if it is rabid. If at the end of seven days the dog is all right then it didn't have rabies at the time of the bite.

THIS MAY save the person, often a child, a painful series of injections, Dr. Hargrave pointed out. This series requires 14 shots in a muscle of the abdomen.

Too often, the commissioner said, the animal is destroyed, frequently with a bullet through the head. A bullet in the head damages the brain and makes it difficult, if not impossible, to ascertain the presence of rabies in laboratory tests.

In case of a bite, the local board of health, 15 Main street, telephone 5300, should be noti-

No Word on Their Progress

Ike, Zhukov Chat At Dinner Table

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Geneva, July 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower and the leaders of the Soviet Union—including his old friend Marshal Georgi Zhukov—drank champagne toasts last night to the success of the summit conference and the winning of an enduring peace.

The President and Zhukov got a chance to chat briefly following a dinner Eisenhower gave for the Russian leaders at his Lake Geneva villa. There was no word whether they made any progress toward ironing out East-West differences.

EISENHOWER and the Soviet defense minister met for the first time in almost 10 years at yesterday's opening session of the Big Four conference. They exchanged brief enthusiastic greetings then.

Getting together at dinner last night, they talked through an interpreter. The President's son. Maj. John Eisenhower, joined in.

Eisenhower and Zhukov became friends when both served as military administrators in Germany after World War 2. Young Eisenhower also met the Soviet officer at that time. After the marshal became Soviet defense minister, he and the President exchanged private letters.

OTHER SOVIET officials attending the dinner were Premier Bulganin, Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov

3,000 Jurors Are Sought For Ulster County Panel

Wanted — 3,000 qualified jurors!

Under the new jury law which went in effect July 1 the Ulster county commissioner of jurors, Edwin N. Ashby, must obtain this number of persons available and qualified to serve.

Commissioner Ashby would be delighted to hear from anyone who wants to join this "panel" of 3,000. His office is in the Ulster county court house. Interested persons are invited to write or telephone 1012.

Briefly, to be qualified as a juror a person must be between the ages of 21 and 70 and worth $250 real or personal property. This property can belong to the person or to the person's wife or husband.

Commissioner Ashby explained that a juror was only permitted to serve one month every two years. The "panel" will be available to all of the county's various courts—magistrate, city, county and supreme.

Now, the matter of pay. A juror receives $5 a day while serving and, if he lives outside the city of Kingston, receives eight cents a mile for travel.

Christ Needed at Geneva

Baptist Speaker Calls for Justice

London, July 19 (AP)—A leading American Baptist said today there can never be peace "as long as one nation of people takes delight in holding another in economic, political and spiritual bondage."

The Rev. Joseph H. Jackson, pastor of the Olivet Baptist Church, Chicago, told the Jubilee of the Baptist World Alliance:

"PEACE IS not a political weapon to be used by one nation to increase its power over another: Peace is a spiritual value and cannot be realized without love and a regard for the sacredness of human personality."

The Rev. Mr. Jackson is the Negro president of the National Baptist Convention of the United States and one of four Baptist ministers who will visit the Soviet Union next month as guests of Russian churchmen.

His address, in the Staid Albert Hall, was accompanied by footstamping and handclapping.

SOME MINISTERS in the audience jumped to their feet and shouted fervent "amens." At times his voice was drowned out as the audience echoed his words.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson spoke of peace in world affairs. Then in reference to the Geneva summit meeting, he declared.

"There is the temple of peace in Geneva today but nobody occupies it.

"I hope these four powers will agree, but if they do not agree according to the principles of justice and according to the word of truth—if they do not agree to break the chains thrown over the fettered peoples of the world—they shall never have peace and fortune."

HE ADDED:

"There is a man outside the door there in Geneva who would like to get in—that man is Jesus Christ.

60 Homes Completed in Heights Area

Another 60 homes in the Barclay Heights Development in the Saugerties area will be placed on sale in a few days, it was announced this morning by Jack Davis, president of Davis Industries and head of the Barclay Heights Development Corporation.

The first "section" of 53 homes in the development has been practically sold out, Mr. Davis said.

HE POINTED out that many of these homes had been purchased by IBM employes at the new Kingston plant. Residents of the development have even formed a baseball club, he said, "and are challenging all comers."

Mr. Davis, who has just returned from three weeks in the Denver, Colo., area where Davis Industries has another huge housing development in progress, said he was delighted with the way the houses were "moving" in the Barclay Heights project.

ULTIMATELY there will be approximately 173 homes in the Barclay Heights project, he said.

Davis Industries embraces the Barclay Heights Development, the Davis Oil Company and other interests in other parts of the country.

Farm Leaders on Visit

12 Soviets Take Trip Across State of Iowa

Des Moines, July 19 (AP)—Twelve visiting Soviet farm leaders set out today for a long cross-country drive across Iowa. At its end there's an Iowa country picnic waiting for them.

It's at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. George Hora, near Washington in the eastern part of the state.

THIS COUPLE with their two children, Keith, 16, and Katherine, 7, occupy 160 acres which they own themselves and from which they reap rich harvests of pork, eggs, corn, oats and hay without any hired help at all.

Perhaps the most important news out here today is that the Russian agricultural big shots are making a hit.

Delegation leader Vladimir Matskevich has turned out to be an exceedingly able diplomat with a turn for the right phrase at the right time.

IOWANS ARE cordial people and they appreciate this particular talent.

It now develops that the Russians came prepared with gifts. They presented admist applause a bouquet of roses and an album to Mrs. Richard L. Allerman a fine Russian-made leciatype camera called the "Fed."

The four Des Moines College girls who thought up the idea of painting in Russian a welcome sign for the Russians' arrival at the Des Moines airport Sunday were presented with bouquets of roses by the visitors.

Iowa Gov. Leo Hoegh last night spoke at a dinner given the Russians. He said the trip of the Russians to Iowa and the trip of the Iowans to Russia would help "us live in peace not only with each other but also with the rest of the world."

MATSKEVICH replied that he was particularly inspired by the portion of the governor's speech

Ike Feels Good on Progress

Russia Anxious On Trade Angle

Geneva, July 19 (AP)—The Big Four agreed today to take up first the thorny question of reuniting Germany.

This is the central issue of the summit conference, in the view of western leaders. It was first on the agenda as President Eisenhower and his three fellow heads of government got together today for their first working session of the conference, following up the session yesterday when each of the four made a preliminary statement.

SHORTLY BEFORE the meeting convened Eisenhower indicated he was not discouraged by the developments so far despite what some American officials called the "negative" attitude of Soviet Premier Bulganin on the German problem.

"I feel pretty good about it so far," the President said when asked by a reporter how things were going.

The four leaders—Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Bulganin, British Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Faure — began their closed session in the council chamber of the Palace of Nations, European headquarters of the United Nations.

THE FOREIGN ministers of the four powers agreed unanimously this morning on a four-point agenda, with German unification as the No. 1 item. Diplomatic observers cautioned, however, against over-optimism of the German problem.

The aspect of the talks which has apparently impressed Eisenhower so far is the cordial atmosphere, which was demonstrated once more in the quick agreement on the agenda.

"So far, very friendly," is the way the President described it.

The decision of the foreign ministers to place the German problem at the top of their work sheet apparently was a concession to western demands since the western foreign ministers had agreed in Paris last week that this was the key to

Only Two Appear At Hearing on City Pay Raises

Only two persons appeared at a hearing today at 10 a. m., in the Common Council chamber, city hall, conducted by Mayor Frederick H. Stang, on two local laws, one of them providing for salary raises for city officials.

Leon Studt, of 59 South Manor avenue, a local public works employe, and president of the local civil service employes' group, appeared to express approval of salary raises for the mayor, alderman-at-large and aldermen, and Joseph J. Turck, fourth ward supervisor, opposed the pay boosts.

THE LOCAL law, recently before the Common Council, provides for raising the mayor's salary from $7,500 to $10,000, that of alderman-at-large from $1,200 to $1,800 and boosts the pay for aldermen from $600 to $1,000.

The other local law provides for adjusting local regulations on special assessments so that they conform with those of the state. The latter bases installment payments of special assessments on a "period of possible usefulness" of a project. The city law formerly required payments in five installments for improvements up to $10,000 and not more than 10 installments for those costing more than $10,000.

THE HEARING brought no comment for or against this change which, Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy said, was requested by bonding attorneys.

Supervisor Turck said he had been asked by people of his ward to oppose the salary raises, since they felt the mayor was getting enough at present because they considered it a part-time job, and they also felt the salary for alderman-at-large was adequate.

The pay of aldermen, he felt, should be no more than $800.

The new salaries are not to be effective until Jan. 1, 1956, under provisions of the local law as presented to the Common Council and acted upon at its July 12 meeting.

Under the new jury law which went in effect July 1 the Ulster county commissioner of jurors, Edwin N. Ashby, must obtain this number of persons available and qualified to serve.

Commissioner Ashby would be delighted to hear from anyone who wants to join this "panel" of 3,000. His office is in the Ulster county court house. Interested persons are invited to write or telephone 1012.

Briefly, to be qualified as a juror a person must be between the ages of 21 and 70 and worth $250 real or personal property. This property can belong to the person or to the person's wife or husband.

Commissioner Ashby explained that a juror was only permitted to serve one month every two years. The "panel" will be available to all of the county's various courts—magistrate, city, county and supreme.

Now, the matter of pay. A juror receives $5 a day while serving and, if he lives outside the city of Kingston, receives eight cents a mile for travel.

Two of Tanker Crew Rescued

Port Ewen Men in Boat Pull Pair From River

Two crew members of a tanker anchored in the Hudson river off Port Ewen were pulled from the water late last night after clinging to a life preserver for more than an hour.

The two men, Joseph A. Strosky, 32, of Jacksonville, Fla., and George Cornelius, 22, of Rock Valley, Long Eddy, were reported to have suffered exhaustion and shock. They were returned to the ship, called the Dormoset, skippered by Ivan Ivyahl, and were treated on board.

ACCORDING to troopers of the Highland State Police, Strosky fell overboard about 10 p. m. and Cornelius took a life preserver and leaped in after him.

Troopers said the two men drifted away from the tanker on the river's currents, moving upstream.

Their cries for help were heard by George Trinkle of Port Ewen, whose home is located on the river a short distance from the Church of the Presentation. Mr. Trinkle notified troopers of the Highland station.

A BOAT owned by Richard Gilligan of Port Ewen shoved off to hunt for the men. With Mr. Gilligan were Mr. Trinkle, Lou Linn and Vincent Fairbrother, all of Port Ewen.

A lifeboat was launched from the tanker and joined the Gilligan boat in the search.

Mrs. Josephine Horvers of Port Ewen, a sister of Mr. Trinkle, said the cries of help were so loud some people heard them as far off as Route 9W.

When the two men were located by the party in the

Christ Needed at Geneva

Baptist Speaker Calls for Justice

London, July 19 (AP)—A leading American Baptist said today there can never be peace "as long as one nation of people takes delight in holding another in economic, political and spiritual bondage."

The Rev. Joseph H. Jackson, pastor of the Olivet Baptist Church, Chicago, told the Jubilee of the Baptist World Alliance:

"PEACE IS not a political weapon to be used by one nation to increase its power over another: Peace is a spiritual value and cannot be realized without love and a regard for the sacredness of human personality."

The Rev. Mr. Jackson is the Negro president of the National Baptist Convention of the United States and one of four Baptist ministers who will visit the Soviet Union next month as guests of Russian churchmen.

His address, in the Staid Albert Hall, was accompanied by footstamping and handclapping.

SOME MINISTERS in the audience jumped to their feet and shouted fervent "amens." At times his voice was drowned out as the audience echoed his words.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson spoke of peace in world affairs. Then in reference to the Geneva summit meeting, he declared.

"There is the temple of peace in Geneva today but nobody occupies it.

"I hope these four powers will agree, but if they do not agree according to the principles of justice and according to the word of truth—if they do not agree to break the chains thrown over the fettered peoples of the world—they shall never have peace and fortune."

HE ADDED:

"There is a man outside the door there in Geneva who would like to get in—that man is Jesus Christ.

60 Homes Completed in Heights Area

Another 60 homes in the Barclay Heights Development in the Saugerties area will be placed on sale in a few days, it was announced this morning by Jack Davis, president of Davis Industries and head of the Barclay Heights Development Corporation.

The first "section" of 53 homes in the development has been practically sold out, Mr. Davis said.

HE POINTED out that many of these homes had been purchased by IBM employes at the new Kingston plant. Residents of the development have even formed a baseball club, he said, "and are challenging all comers."

Mr. Davis, who has just returned from three weeks in the Denver, Colo., area where Davis Industries has another huge housing development in progress, said he was delighted with the way the houses were "moving" in the Barclay Heights project.

ULTIMATELY there will be approximately 173 homes in the Barclay Heights project, he said.

Davis Industries embraces the Barclay Heights Development, the Davis Oil Company and other interests in other parts of the country.

Farm Leaders on Visit

12 Soviets Take Trip Across State of Iowa

Des Moines, July 19 (AP)—Twelve visiting Soviet farm leaders set out today for a long cross-country drive across Iowa. At its end there's an Iowa country picnic waiting for them.

It's at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. George Hora, near Washington in the eastern part of the state.

THIS COUPLE with their two children, Keith, 16, and Katherine, 7, occupy 160 acres which they own themselves and from which they reap rich harvests of pork, eggs, corn, oats and hay without any hired help at all.

Perhaps the most important news out here today is that the Russian agricultural big shots are making a hit.

Delegation leader Vladimir Matskevich has turned out to be an exceedingly able diplomat with a turn for the right phrase at the right time.

IOWANS ARE cordial people and they appreciate this particular talent.

It now develops that the Russians came prepared with gifts.

They presented admist applause a bouquet of roses and an album to Mrs. Richard L. Allerman a fine Russian-made leciatype camera called the "Fed."

The four Des Moines College girls who thought up the idea of painting in Russian a welcome sign for the Russians' arrival at the Des Moines airport Sunday were presented with bouquets of roses by the visitors.

Iowa Gov. Leo Hoegh last night spoke at a dinner given the Russians. He said the trip of the Russians to Iowa and the trip of the Iowans to Russia would help "us live in peace not only with each other but also with the rest of the world."

MATSKEVICH replied that he was particularly inspired by the portion of the governor's speech

Ike Feels Good on Progress

Russia Anxious On Trade Angle

Geneva, July 19 (AP)—The Big Four agreed today to take up first the thorny question of reuniting Germany.

This is the central issue of the summit conference, in the view of western leaders. It was first on the agenda as President Eisenhower and his three fellow heads of government got together today for their first working session of the conference, following up the session yesterday when each of the four made a preliminary statement.

SHORTLY BEFORE the meeting convened Eisenhower indicated he was not discouraged by the developments so far despite what some American officials called the "negative" attitude of Soviet Premier Bulganin on the German problem.

"I feel pretty good about it so far," the President said when asked by a reporter how things were going.

The four leaders—Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Bulganin, British Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Faure — began their closed session in the council chamber of the Palace of Nations, European headquarters of the United Nations.

THE FOREIGN ministers of the four powers agreed unanimously this morning on a four-point agenda, with German unification as the No. 1 item. Diplomatic observers cautioned, however, against over-optimism of the German problem.

The aspect of the talks which has apparently impressed Eisenhower so far is the cordial atmosphere, which was demonstrated once more in the quick agreement on the agenda.

"So far, very friendly," is the way the President described it.

The decision of the foreign ministers to place the German problem at the top of their work sheet apparently was a concession to western demands since the western foreign ministers had agreed in Paris last week that this was the key to

Only Two Appear At Hearing on City Pay Raises

Only two persons appeared at a hearing today at 10 a. m., in the Common Council chamber, city hall, conducted by Mayor Frederick H. Stang, on two local laws, one of them providing for salary raises for city officials.

Leon Studt, of 59 South Manor avenue, a local public works employe, and president of the local civil service employes' group, appeared to express approval of salary raises for the mayor, alderman-at-large and aldermen, and Joseph J. Turck, fourth ward supervisor, opposed the pay boosts.

THE LOCAL law, recently before the Common Council, provides for raising the mayor's salary from $7,500 to $10,000, that of alderman-at-large from $1,200 to $1,800 and boosts the pay for aldermen from $600 to $1,000.

The other local law provides for adjusting local regulations on special assessments so that they conform with those of the state. The latter bases installment payments of special assessments on a "period of possible usefulness" of a project. The city law formerly required payments in five installments for improvements up to $10,000 and not more than 10 installments for those costing more than $10,000.

THE HEARING brought no comment for or against this change which, Corporation Counsel James J. Abernethy said, was requested by bonding attorneys.

Supervisor Turck said he had been asked by people of his ward to oppose the salary raises, since they felt the mayor was getting enough at present because they considered it a part-time job, and they also felt the salary for alderman-at-large was adequate.

The pay of aldermen, he felt, should be no more than $800.

The new salaries are not to be effective until Jan. 1, 1956, under provisions of the local law as presented to the Common Council and acted upon at its July 12 meeting.

Easier Mortgages Finally Boost Costs of Dwellings

New York, July 19 (AP)—The easier the mortgage payments are on your current budget the more money you'll have to put out before you finally get full title to your home.

Lending agencies are starting to stress that paying for a home "just like rent" costs more in interest payments over the years.

On a $10,000 loan a veteran can save himself more than $3,000 by taking out a 20-year mortgage instead of a 30-year one, the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. of Minneapolis notes today.

Or, put another way, on each $1,000 of downpayment you can manage to put up, you can save over $800 in interest payments on a 30-year program, or more than $500 in interest payments on a 20-year schedule.

MANY FAMILIES who'd like a home of their own, or a larger house for a growing brood, are discussing today how best to finance it. The problem: They can save interest payments in the long run by taking the 20-year payment plan instead of the 30-year one — but their monthly payments in the meantime will be about $12.50 higher. And they may want to use that $12.50 toward payments on the refrigerator or stove.

Commiting themselves to buying a house "just like rent" may be the only way they can afford one on their present income. So they decide to run the risk of their income dropping in the future and thus making payments a burden, or of their moving to another city and leaving behind a house in which their equity may be tiny.

THE INSURANCE company notes that under a 20-year payment plan on a $10,000 deal, all borrowed, they would in 10 years have paid off about $3,900 in principal. It says that under a 30-year schedule, their payments on principal in the first 10 years would be about $2,000.

The easy payment plans grow in popularity, however. The Veterans Administration reports that 43 per cent of the GI plan loans now being made are the no-down payment type. And the percentage of the longer maturities has doubled in the last two years.

The total of mortgage debt outstanding mounts as the housing boom continues most places unchecked. Since the end of the war the amount has increased four fold and crossed the 75 billion dollar mark as 1955 started.

THE U. S. SAVINGS & Loan League predicts that these associations will lend 10 billion dollars on home loans this year, for the first time.

Some lenders are beginning to fret over the speedy rate of the rise in easy payment loans in recent months. And some bankers warn the nation may suddenly find itself over-built.

But a Savings & Loan spokesman points out that housing is strictly a local product and dependent upon the local market. He warns against trying to draw national conclusions from local conditions.

AND A SAVINGS BANK president who makes many mortgage loans in the east says that three fourths of home owners with mortgages are spending less than 20 per cent of their total income on mortgage interest and amortization payments and on property taxes.

For the would-be home buyer, however, the word still is: The more you can pay down at the start, and the bigger the monthly payments you can handle, the less money you'll have to put out altogether to make that home all yours.

Shady Man Hurt In Auto Mishap

William Fraleigh, 20, of Shady, whose car failed to negotiate a turn on Route 212 a mile southeast of the Shady Post Office about 7 p. m. yesterday, was reported in apparently fair condition at Kingston Hospital this morning.

Trooper H. H. Ganss of the Kingston station, who investigated, said Fraleigh suffered lacerations of the face and body and a broken collarbone.

Mr. Fraleigh was operating his 1946 sedan in a westerly direction when it failed to make the turn, leaped a culvert and plunged through brush for about 200 feet before coming to rest against a small tree.

Mr. Fraleigh was taken to the hospital by Schultz Ambulance. Trooper Ganss listed the vehicle as "total damage."

Large Amount

The 13 billion dollars that the United States spent for defense in 1947 was a larger dollar than it spent for military uses in the peak year of World War 1.

Two Planes Crash

Baltimore, July 19 (AP)—Two military planes crashed in the air near Friendship International Airport shortly after noon today. The pilot of one plane was reported killed. One of the craft, reported to be a C45 twin-engine ship, crashed across the highway from the High Point School near Greenhaven, about 15 miles south of Baltimore in the Chesapeake Bay area. First reports said the pilot of that plane lost his life. The other, a B25 bomber, was reported by Civil Air Patrol spokesmen to have struck a house near suburban Linthicum, not far from the airport. The CAP spokesman said apparently the two persons aboard escaped injury. He added the occupants of the house escaped serious injury.

Dead Center

Columbia, S. C. (AP)—Workmen measured to the center of a block on South Main street, here and painted a traffic line. They moved on to the next block, measured out from one curb and painted a traffic line. But it wasn't in the center. The second block was considerably wider than the first block, and the workers had used the same measurement from the curb they'd used in the previous block. So they had to scrape up the line in the second block and paint another right down the middle.

He Got Stung

Humphrey, Neb. (AP)—When his truck turned over Don Hayes was hustled off to the hospital. But Hayes' injuries weren't the run-of-the-mill traffic accident variety. He had severe stings. The truck was loaded with bees.

About the Folks

Mrs. James K. Wesley of Connelly is a patient at the Benedictine Hospital.

Mayor Gets . . .

to give to our people the best administration possible.

"I feel we can do this if we will work hard between now and election day for the entire Republican ticket. I trust that this year on election night there will be no question right from the beginning as to the overwhelming success of our party at the polls."

Connelly, in nominating Mayor Stang, said that under his administration "the taxpayers had received the maximum service for each dollar." "In his administration, he said, came an active street repair program, better street lighting, improved water facilities, the Kingston Point Beach, other recreational facilities, an active program to eliminate the Washington avenue viaduct, a projected program for off-street parking, and other projects.

The mayor, he said, has attacked the problem of reassessments "with courage," and plans "are being made to give equality to all property owners. The problem of refuse disposal was one "politically explosive," he said, but the city now has a landfill project covering the Wilbus avenue dump area, and another of general benefit to the city.

ALDERMAN PERRY, in seconding the nomination, said he considered it an honor to do so. As alderman, he said, he was able to "observe his progressive program," and the record shows that "each ward has received his consideration."

Schecter said in seconding the nomination that it was his privilege to know the mayor for "a good many years." Stressing his personality, he said, "Fred has a genuine likening for people, and a deep concern for their interests," and he said he is known and liked by many individuals and respected by all." He cited his love of country and "his dedication to the principles that have made this country so great," and his devotion to the Republican party.

Chairman Haver said the city was fortunate to have a man of Stang's calibre willing to sacrifice his personal law practice to serve the city, and he urged all to get out and work for his re-election.

IN NOMINATING Schwenk, Kelly expressed thanks that he himself was the party's choice for three terms as alderman-at-large. The post, he said, is an important one, and for it, he noted he was naming a man of experience, "A real public servant, a man who has made civic interest his main concern for many, many years." He noted that he was a veteran of World War 1, he was interested in youth movements through the YMCA, had served impressively on the water board, as well as in the Common Council as alderman-at-large.

Albert N. Cook, candidate for county treasurer, Howard C. St. John, named to succeed himself as district attorney, and Louis G. Bruhn, candidate for county judge, were presented to the convention by Chairman Haver.

NAMED AS a committee on vacancies was N. LeVan Haver, Martin W. Golden and Clara Vogel.

Haver also announced the appointment of City Clerk Bernhardt S. Kramer as assistant city chairman.

Prior to adjournment County Chairman Arthur H. Wicks was introduced and he congratulated the convention on its choice of candidates. He said the Republican party as usual had a "splendid ticket" of experienced candidates. He pointed out the obligation of the delegates, committeemen and workers to serve in their wards and districts for the election of the ticket and he called them the "unsung heroes" who got little credit publicly but who did much for the success of the party. He said the Republican party had always given a good administration, had always presented a progressive program and had he predicted the same good service to offer the public this year.

In closing Haver urged all Republicans to get out and work as a team and he said he felt sure that if they did this the county candidates would be elected by a very large vote and in the city the mayor would be elected by one of those "walloping 3,000 majority votes" which had been referred to during the convention as having taken place in the past.

Devil's Lake Fire

A dump fire at Devil's Lake, First avenue, last night required the attention of firemen for several hours. Cornell station responded to a call at 9:43 p. m., and firemen were at the scene until 1:20 a. m. Union Hose equipment stood by at Cornell station and Cordts Hose was given a "stand-by" notice at its station. The Hurley fire department was called out at 11:44 a. m., today for a grass fire in the cemetery there.

Ike Feels . . .

any easing of tension in Europe.

EISENHOWER, Eden and Faure stressed the German issue in their opening statements yesterday.

The other points on the agenda were European security, disarmament and "development of contacts between East and West."

The meeting of the foreign ministers lasted only an hour and a half, indicating there was little difficulty over the order of business.

A statement issued by the three western ministers said any additional items "will be referred to the heads of government for decision."

THE FOUR government heads were to meet this afternoon to begin talks on the agenda their ministers had prepared for them.

Western leaders were reported moderately optimistic today following the policy outlines given at yesterday's meetings by the Big Four.

Informants said the item on East-West contacts would include Eisenhower's bid for more freedom for the Communist satellites. Bulganin declared yesterday the present conference is not the proper place to take up the question.

IT WILL also give the four powers a chance to discuss East-West trade, a subject which the Russians believe of great importance.

James Hagerty, the President's press secretary, said he wanted to call attention to what he termed the "tone of the meeting" of the foreign ministers.

"They met for an hour and a half and were able to agree on four items," he said.

Hagerty characterized that as a "not insignificant" achievement and added: "I think it is a very healthy sign of the way the conference is developing."

IN REPLY to a question, Hagerty said it was his understanding the heads of government would start substantive discussion of the agenda topics, rather than first talking over whether to accept the items agreed upon by the foreign ministers.

Russian press chief Leonid Ilyichev said the decision setting up the order of discussion was unanimous.

Sir George Young, British spokesman, said the agenda was adopted "after some amiable discussion."

Other British informants said the Soviets gave way to western demands for top level priority for German unification.

These informants said also that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov raised Far Eastern problems, and such a discussion could take place under item No. 4.

Nehru Says . . .

asked his views on Dulles' statement that the Soviets had agreed to the Geneva meeting because of weakness at home. The Indian leader, who spent two weeks in Russia last month, replied there is "no foundation or justification" for such an opinion. "I do not think the Russians suffer from economic or military weaknesses," he added.

Nehru said application of the five principles of co-existence to which he and Bulganin subscribed during his visit should lead to "nonfunctioning or fading out" of the cominform, the Communist International Organization.

He reported also the Bulganin, during the Moscow visit, offered to provide India with machinery and technicians as a goodwill measure. But it was "not free aid," Nehru added, and details were not discussed.

Most Workers Return

South Bend, Ind., July 19 (AP)—Most of Studebaker's 9,000 employes reported for work this morning but were sent home for the fourth straight working day as 100 final assembly workers continued a walkout. The workers walked out last Thursday in a dispute over seniority. Both the Studebaker-Packard Corp. and officials of the CIO United Auto Workers have called the walkout unauthorized. Union and company officials are meeting daily in an effort to end the dispute and start production of automobiles and trucks again.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 19 (AP) — The stock market dropped sharply in heavy trading today.

After a quiet start with mixed prices following yesterday's mild decline, there was a burst of selling that delayed the tape.

DuPont dropped $7.50 to $226.50, U. S. Steel $2 at $51.25, Bethlehem Steel $2.50 at $149, Youngstown Sheet & Tube $3 to $86.50 and Standard Oil (New Jersey) $1.87 to $134.

Boeing, Douglas and General Dynamics all were down more than $1 a share.

The fall came just before noon. Wall street sources were inclined to attribute the decline to the Geneva conference.

"You might call it a mild peace scare," commented Eldon Grimm, analyst for Walston & Co. "The aircrafts and shipbuildings started to decline and this spread to the rest of the list."

Expect Larger Crops

Albany, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—The state's crop of peaches, pears, sweet and sour cherries is expected to be larger than last year's, the Agriculture Department reported today. But the indicated production of apples is slightly lower and grape prospects are considerably lower, the service said. The expected apple crop was set at 16,500,000 bushels, 2 per cent smaller than last year's yield but 17 per cent more than the 1944-53 average. The crop is sizing well in most areas.

Biting Dog . . .

The name of the owner of the dog should be obtained in order that the dog may be located and effectively shut away for the seven-day period.

IN CASE the dog has been destroyed, the board of health should still be notified immediately. The local health department is prepared to handle transportation of a dead dog, fox, etc., to Albany for laboratory tests.

Dr. Hargrave explained that in hot weather as that now prevailing, dogs were inclined to be "snappish," just like people. "If a dog bites Junior, don't be panicky," he cautioned. "Find out whose dog it is. . . Go to the family physician who will clean the wound." The commissioner said the family doctor would determine whether or not injections of anti-rabies vaccine was necessary. Much depends on whether the dog can be located and shut away for the seven-day observation period, he pointed out.

THE INCUBATION period for rabies is unpredictable. It may be 10 days, perhaps two weeks, or, for example, in the case of a dog bitten by a fox it may crop up months later. The incubation period is the period between the bite and the time the illness develops.

The commissioner said some cases of rabid foxes had been reported this year in neighboring counties—Greene, Sullivan and Delaware—but no cases of rabid animals in Ulster county.

There were two rabid animals reported in the county last year —a fox and a cow.

EVEN IF the dog is vicious, the commissioner reiterated, it should be protected and kept under observation. This was the point Dr. Hargrave most vigorously sought to impress on the public mind.

In case of dog bite, even if the owner of the dog is unknown, the health department should be advised immediately. The health department will attempt to "track down" the dog if so notified.

Baptist Speaker

"If they opened the door and let him in he will fix everything."

Regarding peace in the world, he said:

"Peace cannot come by means of disarmament alone: Peace cannot come by the majority vote of the congresses and parliaments of the world or by the decrees of heads of state. Peace will never come as long as one nation takes delight in holding another in economic, political and spiritual bondage.

"In order to bring peace, men must be dominated by a spirit of love, controlled by a passion for the victory of truth: And dedicated to the ideals of social justice and moral and spiritual well-being."

it, on the theory that the people will watch TV if they see something good, O'Neil a year and a half ago paid 1½ million dollars for 30 good films languishing in the vaults of the Bank of America because of a forfeited mortgage.

It was considered fantastic at the time. But O'Neil has realized a million dollars worth of advertising income from the films on his New York outlet alone. And he has sold the movies to 90 stations around the country.

Easier Mortgages Finally Boost Costs of Dwellings

New York, July 19 (AP)—The easier the mortgage payments are on your current budget the more money you'll have to put out before you finally get full title to your home.

Lending agencies are starting to stress that paying for a home "just like rent" costs more in interest payments over the years.

On a $10,000 loan a veteran can save himself more than $3,000 by taking out a 20-year mortgage instead of a 30-year one, the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. of Minneapolis notes today.

Or, put another way, on each $1,000 of downpayment you can manage to put up, you can save over $800 in interest payments on a 30-year program, or more than $500 in interest payments on a 20-year schedule.

MANY FAMILIES who'd like a home of their own, or a larger house for a growing brood, are discussing today how best to finance it. The problem: They can save interest payments in the long run by taking the 20-year payment plan instead of the 30-year one — but their monthly payments in the meantime will be about $12.50 higher. And they may want to use that $12.50 toward payments on the refrigerator or stove.

Commiting themselves to buying a house "just like rent" may be the only way they can afford one on their present income. So they decide to run the risk of their income dropping in the future and thus making payments a burden, or of their moving to another city and leaving behind a house in which their equity may be tiny.

THE INSURANCE company notes that under a 20-year payment plan on a $10,000 deal, all borrowed, they would in 10 years have paid off about $3,900 in principal. It says that under a 30-year schedule, their payments on principal in the first 10 years would be about $2,000.

The easy payment plans grow in popularity, however. The Veterans Administration reports that 43 per cent of the GI plan loans now being made are the no-down payment type. And the percentage of the longer maturities has doubled in the last two years.

The total of mortgage debt outstanding mounts as the housing boom continues most places unchecked. Since the end of the war the amount has increased four fold and crossed the 75 billion dollar mark as 1955 started.

THE U. S. SAVINGS & Loan League predicts that these associations will lend 10 billion dollars on home loans this year, for the first time.

Some lenders are beginning to fret over the speedy rate of the rise in easy payment loans in recent months. And some bankers warn the nation may suddenly find itself over-built.

But a Savings & Loan spokesman points out that housing is strictly a local product and dependent upon the local market. He warns against trying to draw national conclusions from local conditions.

AND A SAVINGS BANK president who makes many mortgage loans in the east says that three fourths of home owners with mortgages are spending less than 20 per cent of their total income on mortgage interest and amortization payments and on property taxes.

For the would-be home buyer, however, the word still is: The more you can pay down at the start, and the bigger the monthly payments you can handle, the less money you'll have to put out altogether to make that home all yours.

Shady Man Hurt In Auto Mishap

William Fraleigh, 20, of Shady, whose car failed to negotiate a turn on Route 212 a mile southeast of the Shady Post Office about 7 p. m. yesterday, was reported in apparently fair condition at Kingston Hospital this morning.

Trooper H. H. Ganss of the Kingston station, who investigated, said Fraleigh suffered lacerations of the face and body and a broken collarbone.

Mr. Fraleigh was operating his 1946 sedan in a westerly direction when it failed to make the turn, leaped a culvert and plunged through brush for about 200 feet before coming to rest against a small tree.

Mr. Fraleigh was taken to the hospital by Schultz Ambulance. Trooper Ganss listed the vehicle as "total damage."

Large Amount

The 13 billion dollars that the United States spent for defense in 1947 was a larger dollar than it spent for military uses in the peak year of World War 1.

Blasts Complaints

Local police yesterday received complaints of the effects of a blast from more than a dozen streets in the city. A police report at 5:35 p. m., said the Callanan Road Improvement Co., of South Rondout, had reported setting off a blast at that time. Some complaints said they had felt it "more than any of the past." The complaints came from Andrew, Main, East Union, East Chester, West Chestnut, South Pine, Summer Warren, Belvedere and West Pierpont streets, and from the Wilbur section, police said.

Dead Center

Columbia, S. C. (AP)—Workmen measured to the center of a block on South Main street, here and painted a traffic line. They moved on to the next block, measured out from one curb and painted a traffic line. But it wasn't in the center. The second block was considerably wider than the first block, and the workers had used the same measurement from the curb they'd used in the previous block. So they had to scrape up the line in the second block and paint another right down the middle.

He Got Stung

Humphrey, Neb. (AP)—When his truck turned over Don Hayes was hustled off to the hospital. But Hayes' injuries weren't the run-of-the-mill traffic accident variety. He had severe stings. The truck was loaded with bees.

One of the craft, reported to be a C45 twin-engine ship, crashed across the highway from the High Point School near Greenhaven, about 15 miles south of Baltimore in the Chesapeake Bay area. First reports said the pilot of that plane lost his life. The other, a B25 bomber, was reported by Civil Air Patrol spokesmen to have struck a house near suburban Linthicum, not far from the airport. The CAP spokesman said apparently the two persons aboard escaped injury. He added the occupants of the house escaped serious injury.

About the Folks

Mrs. James K. Wesley of Connelly is a patient at the Benedictine Hospital.

Mayor Gets . . .

to give to our people the best administration possible.

"I feel we can do this if we will work hard between now and election day for the entire Republican ticket. I trust that this year on election night there will be no question right from the beginning as to the overwhelming success of our party at the polls."

Connelly, in nominating Mayor Stang, said that under his administration "the taxpayers had received the maximum service for each dollar." "In his administration, he said, came an active street repair program, better street lighting, improved water facilities, the Kingston Point Beach, other recreational facilities, an active program to eliminate the Washington avenue viaduct, a projected program for off-street parking, and other projects.

The mayor, he said, has attacked the problem of reassessments "with courage," and plans "are being made to give equality to all property owners. The problem of refuse disposal was one "politically explosive," he said, but the city now has a landfill project covering the Wilbus avenue dump area, and another of general benefit to the city.

ALDERMAN PERRY, in seconding the nomination, said he considered it an honor to do so. As alderman, he said, he was able to "observe his progressive program," and the record shows that "each ward has received his consideration."

Schecter said in seconding the nomination that it was his privilege to know the mayor for "a good many years." Stressing his personality, he said, "Fred has a genuine likening for people, and a deep concern for their interests," and he said he is known and liked by many individuals and respected by all." He cited his love of country and "his dedication to the principles that have made this country so great," and his devotion to the Republican party.

Chairman Haver said the city was fortunate to have a man of Stang's calibre willing to sacrifice his personal law practice to serve the city, and he urged all to get out and work for his re-election.

IN NOMINATING Schwenk, Kelly expressed thanks that he himself was the party's choice for three terms as alderman-at-large. The post, he said, is an important one, and for it, he noted he was naming a man of experience, "A real public servant, a man who has made civic interest his main concern for many, many years." He noted that he was a veteran of World War 1, he was interested in youth movements through the YMCA, had served impressively on the water board, as well as in the Common Council as alderman-at-large.

Albert N. Cook, candidate for county treasurer, Howard C. St. John, named to succeed himself as district attorney, and Louis G. Bruhn, candidate for county judge, were presented to the convention by Chairman Haver.

NAMED AS a committee on vacancies was N. LeVan Haver, Martin W. Golden and Clara Vogel.

Haver also announced the appointment of City Clerk Bernhardt S. Kramer as assistant city chairman.

Prior to adjournment County Chairman Arthur H. Wicks was introduced and he congratulated the convention on its choice of candidates. He said the Republican party as usual had a "splendid ticket" of experienced candidates. He pointed out the obligation of the delegates, committeemen and workers to serve in their wards and districts for the election of the ticket and he called them the "unsung heroes" who got little credit publicly but who did much for the success of the party. He said the Republican party had always given a good administration, had always presented a progressive program and had he predicted the same good service to offer the public this year.

In closing Haver urged all Republicans to get out and work as a team and he said he felt sure that if they did this the county candidates would be elected by a very large vote and in the city the mayor would be elected by one of those "walloping 3,000 majority votes" which had been referred to during the convention as having taken place in the past.

Ike Feels . . .

any easing of tension in Europe.

EISENHOWER, Eden and Faure stressed the German issue in their opening statements yesterday.

The other points on the agenda were European security, disarmament and "development of contacts between East and West."

The meeting of the foreign ministers lasted only an hour and a half, indicating there was little difficulty over the order of business.

A statement issued by the three western ministers said any additional items "will be referred to the heads of government for decision."

THE FOUR government heads were to meet this afternoon to begin talks on the agenda their ministers had prepared for them.

Western leaders were reported moderately optimistic today following the policy outlines given at yesterday's meetings by the Big Four.

Informants said the item on East-West contacts would include Eisenhower's bid for more freedom for the Communist satellites. Bulganin declared yesterday the present conference is not the proper place to take up the question.

IT WILL also give the four powers a chance to discuss East-West trade, a subject which the Russians believe of great importance.

James Hagerty, the President's press secretary, said he wanted to call attention to what he termed the "tone of the meeting" of the foreign ministers.

"They met for an hour and a half and were able to agree on four items," he said.

Hagerty characterized that as a "not insignificant" achievement and added: "I think it is a very healthy sign of the way the conference is developing."

IN REPLY to a question, Hagerty said it was his understanding the heads of government would start substantive discussion of the agenda topics, rather than first talking over whether to accept the items agreed upon by the foreign ministers.

Russian press chief Leonid Ilyichev said the decision setting up the order of discussion was unanimous.

Sir George Young, British spokesman, said the agenda was adopted "after some amiable discussion."

Other British informants said the Soviets gave way to western demands for top level priority for German unification.

These informants said also that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov raised Far Eastern problems, and such a discussion could take place under item No. 4.

Nehru Says . . .

asked his views on Dulles' statement that the Soviets had agreed to the Geneva meeting because of weakness at home. The Indian leader, who spent two weeks in Russia last month, replied there is "no foundation or justification" for such an opinion. "I do not think the Russians suffer from economic or military weaknesses," he added.

Nehru said application of the five principles of co-existence to which he and Bulganin subscribed during his visit should lead to "nonfunctioning or fading out" of the cominform, the Communist International Organization.

He reported also the Bulganin, during the Moscow visit, offered to provide India with machinery and technicians as a goodwill measure. But it was "not free aid," Nehru added, and details were not discussed.

Most Workers Return

South Bend, Ind., July 19 (AP)—Most of Studebaker's 9,000 employes reported for work this morning but were sent home for the fourth straight working day as 100 final assembly workers continued a walkout. The workers walked out last Thursday in a dispute over seniority. Both the Studebaker-Packard Corp. and officials of the CIO United Auto Workers have called the walkout unauthorized. Union and company officials are meeting daily in an effort to end the dispute and start production of automobiles and trucks again.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 19 (AP) — The stock market dropped sharply in heavy trading today.

After a quiet start with mixed prices following yesterday's mild decline, there was a burst of selling that delayed the tape.

DuPont dropped $7.50 to $226.50, U. S. Steel $2 at $51.25, Bethlehem Steel $2.50 at $149, Youngstown Sheet & Tube $3 to $86.50 and Standard Oil (New Jersey) $1.87 to $134.

Boeing, Douglas and General Dynamics all were down more than $1 a share.

The fall came just before noon. Wall street sources were inclined to attribute the decline to the Geneva conference.

"You might call it a mild peace scare," commented Eldon Grimm, analyst for Walston & Co. "The aircrafts and shipbuildings started to decline and this spread to the rest of the list."

Expect Larger Crops

Albany, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—The state's crop of peaches, pears, sweet and sour cherries is expected to be larger than last year's, the Agriculture Department reported today. But the indicated production of apples is slightly lower and grape prospects are considerably lower, the service said. The expected apple crop was set at 16,500,000 bushels, 2 per cent smaller than last year's yield but 17 per cent more than the 1944-53 average. The crop is sizing well in most areas.

Biting Dog . . .

The name of the owner of the dog should be obtained in order that the dog may be located and effectively shut away for the seven-day period.

IN CASE the dog has been destroyed, the board of health should still be notified immediately. The local health department is prepared to handle transportation of a dead dog, fox, etc., to Albany for laboratory tests.

Dr. Hargrave explained that in hot weather as that now prevailing, dogs were inclined to be "snappish," just like people. "If a dog bites Junior, don't be panicky," he cautioned. "Find out whose dog it is. . . Go to the family physician who will clean the wound." The commissioner said the family doctor would determine whether or not injections of anti-rabies vaccine was necessary. Much depends on whether the dog can be located and shut away for the seven-day observation period, he pointed out.

THE INCUBATION period for rabies is unpredictable. It may be 10 days, perhaps two weeks, or, for example, in the case of a dog bitten by a fox it may crop up months later. The incubation period is the period between the bite and the time the illness develops.

The commissioner said some cases of rabid foxes had been reported this year in neighboring counties—Greene, Sullivan and Delaware—but no cases of rabid animals in Ulster county.

There were two rabid animals reported in the county last year —a fox and a cow.

EVEN IF the dog is vicious, the commissioner reiterated, it should be protected and kept under observation. This was the point Dr. Hargrave most vigorously sought to impress on the public mind.

In case of dog bite, even if the owner of the dog is unknown, the health department should be advised immediately. The health department will attempt to "track down" the dog if so notified.

Baptist Speaker

"If they opened the door and let him in he will fix everything."

Regarding peace in the world, he said:

"Peace cannot come by means of disarmament alone: Peace cannot come by the majority vote of the congresses and parliaments of the world or by the decrees of heads of state. Peace will never come as long as one nation takes delight in holding another in economic, political and spiritual bondage.

"In order to bring peace, men must be dominated by a spirit of love, controlled by a passion for the victory of truth: And dedicated to the ideals of social justice and moral and spiritual well-being."

it, on the theory that the people will watch TV if they see something good, O'Neil a year and a half ago paid 1½ million dollars for 30 good films languishing in the vaults of the Bank of America because of a forfeited mortgage.

It was considered fantastic at the time. But O'Neil has realized a million dollars worth of advertising income from the films on his New York outlet alone. And he has sold the movies to 90 stations around the country.

Few Homes Idle Survey Discloses

The Kingston area had only 1.3 of its family dwelling units vacant in mid-June, a post office report noted today.

Postmaster William R. Kraft said a survey by the local post office last June 15, was made then in cooperation with Frank A. Mucha, zone economist for the Federal Housing Administration as an aid in determining the current state of the Kingston housing market.

THE AREA outside of Kingston, served by the post office on RFD routes, was included in the survey, he said. It was conducted by postmen on their routes.

In addition to providing valuable information on the current availability of houses and apartments, the survey will assist in evaluating other real estate market data.

COVERED IN the survey were 11,962 dwelling units now being serviced by letter carriers in the Kingston area. Of the total surveyed, only 139 were observed to be vacant on June 15. Of these, 24 units were just completed.

In addition, 138 units were listed as under construction. Mucha noted that some of these might have been rented or sold at the time of the survey, and thus would not be currently available, but others might have become available since June 15.

THIS IS A "DIFFERENT" INSURANCE COMPANY...

The development of policies such as these—designed to serve people better—has been the guiding principle of Farm Bureau Insurance since we were founded 29 years ago.

At that time a group of Ohio farmers, seeking ways to help themselves obtain lower cost insurance, started these Companies.

During the intervening years this idea of self-help has been expressed in many ways—advisory groups of policyholders meet annually to help plan our activities; related enterprises have been formed to help people finance homes and cars at lower cost; and loans have been provided to distributors of consumer goods.

These are typical examples of mutual enterprise—of people working together, not for private gain, but to help solve many of their economic needs.

Few Homes Idle Survey Discloses

The Kingston area had only 1.3 of its family dwelling units vacant in mid-June, a post office report noted today.

Postmaster William R. Kraft said a survey by the local post office last June 15, was made then in cooperation with Frank A. Mucha, zone economist for the Federal Housing Administration as an aid in determining the current state of the Kingston housing market.

THE AREA outside of Kingston, served by the post office on RFD routes, was included in the survey, he said. It was conducted by postmen on their routes.

In addition to providing valuable information on the current availability of houses and apartments, the survey will assist in evaluating other real estate market data.

COVERED IN the survey were 11,962 dwelling units now being serviced by letter carriers in the Kingston area. Of the total surveyed, only 139 were observed to be vacant on June 15. Of these, 24 units were just completed.

In addition, 138 units were listed as under construction. Mucha noted that some of these might have been rented or sold at the time of the survey, and thus would not be currently available, but others might have become available since June 15.

THIS IS A "DIFFERENT" INSURANCE COMPANY...

The development of policies such as these—designed to serve people better—has been the guiding principle of Farm Bureau Insurance since we were founded 29 years ago.

At that time a group of Ohio farmers, seeking ways to help themselves obtain lower cost insurance, started these Companies.

During the intervening years this idea of self-help has been expressed in many ways—advisory groups of policyholders meet annually to help plan our activities; related enterprises have been formed to help people finance homes and cars at lower cost; and loans have been provided to distributors of consumer goods.

These are typical examples of mutual enterprise—of people working together, not for private gain, but to help solve many of their economic needs.

MILITARY BALLOT

Some 325,000 young men and women of the State of New York, who are serving in the armed forces of our country, may vote in the general election on November 8 by military ballot.

To obtain a military ballot, a serviceman may file an application or he may write a letter giving his full name and rank, his home residence address and his military address. Applications or letters must be subscribed by the serviceman but need not be sworn to nor attested.

The spouse, parent or child of a serviceman who resides in the same election district as the serviceman and who accompanies him may also vote a military ballot. The application for the military ballot for such person is the same as that used by the serviceman.

The Division for Servicemen's Voting, which is located at 164 State Street, Albany 1, N. Y. has post card applications available to any person or organization requesting them. They must be mailed to reach Albany by October 31.

Our military forces are entitled to be advised of their voting rights so that they may participate in the election.

You can render a great public service to these people by letting them know of their rights.

TOWN NEIGHBORS

Vacation time, when the United States and Canada are each other's best travel customers, reminds people on both sides of the border that the other folks are quite friendly and really quite familiar.

In places like International Falls, Minn., and Fort Frances, Ontario, across the Rainy River, residents live together like relatives the year around.

At Rotary club meetings everybody sings "The Star Spangled Banner" and "O Canada", then they all toast the President and the Queen. The Canadians like to buy gadgets and see Sunday movies in Minnesota. The Americans like to buy food and go fishing in Ontario.

Newspapers, radio broadcasts, concerts, club meetings and civic celebrations are all shared with casual enjoyment by citizens of both countries. International marriages are frequent occurrences.

This seems easy because the two cities are so close. But it wouldn't happen if the people and their governments didn't want it to happen.

East Berlin and West Berlin are even closer, but the Russian government still chooses to keep it a divided city, with the border an interference instead of a link.

CONGRESSIONAL DELAYS

It's hot in Washington, D. C., these days and like the rest of us the members of Congress work better when the temperature is more moderate. Yet it is possible that Congress will not reach adjournment on schedule. If it should it will be because some legislation will get fast handling — too fast, maybe — and other legislation, some of it very necessary, will be postponed until next year.

For some reason Congress manages to go along in low gear for the first half of each session, then has to turn on the speed in the last weeks. This means that some work is neglected and some is not done as well as it might be.

Perhaps if long, meaningless speeches that find their way into the Congressional record were never made some time could be saved in the early days of a session. Full debate of an issue is one thing but often Senators and Representatives intend to impress constituents rather than to contribute anything to the discussion of a bill.

Congress works hard—that fact must not be overlooked. But it wastes time, too. And it might be possible for those in charge to schedule legislation more evenly so that bottlenecks don't occur at the end of the sessions. It is certainly a problem the members of Congress should want to do something about.

'These Days'

THE UNREALITIES OF STATESMANSHIP

William Graham Summer wisely stated the case against unrealities which become political problems when he said:

". . . The whole method of abstract speculation on political topics is vicious. It is popular because it is easy; it is easier to imagine a new world than to learn to know this one; it is easier to embark on speculations based on a few broad assumptions than it is to study the history of states and institutions; it is easier to catch up a popular dogma than it is to analyze it to see whether it is true or not. All this leads to confusion, to the admission of phrases and platitudes, to much disputing but little gain in the prosperity of nations."

This is one of the problems with which the great gentlemen who meet at Geneva must deal. They are faced by a series of unrealities in which their own peoples and most of the peoples of the world have somehow come to believe.

For instance, the rights of weak and backward nations, self-determination as Woodrow Wilson put it, are unrealities. Weak and backward nations live today, as they always have lived, by the consent of the strong powers until, for one or another historic reason, they themselves become strong. Belgium, for example, can only be a free nation, as long as its protectors are able to defend it. Twice Germany has demonstrated that Belgium cannot successfully be defended. Had Germany won either World War I or World War II, Belgium would have become a state within the German Empire.

Many intelligent persons in most countries believe that colonialism is unjust. But when they employ the term, colonialism, they are thinking in terms of the 19th Century, rather than in terms of the middle of the 20th Century. By colonialism they mean the possession or domination of a weak and backward country such as India by a powerful economic and military empire such as Great Britain. While remnants of such empires continue to exist, the general trend in that category has been one of recession.

The old colonialism was, generally speaking, expansion by seapower and exploitation by commerce and capital investment. The new colonialism, as practiced by Soviet Russia and Red China, is the expansion of political and geographical boundaries and the absorption of existing countries into the Soviet Universal State by their conversion into Marxist nations.

The constant quarrel with Great Britain and France over the remnants of their colonial empires is an emphasis on the insignificant compared with the vast growth of the new colonialism in the Soviet Universal State which has since 1938 increased its population from 180,000,000 to approximately 900,000,000 souls. As a matter of reality, India could be included to the extent that its sympathies lie with the Soviet Universal State although its declarations are for neutrality.

Another unreality that is generally accepted as a true condition is the assumption that peace is not war. The Cold War should have convinced the world that war is of many devices in the current practice. For instance, ll the announcements of new weapons, of expansion of atomic and hydrogen bombs, of great explosions which are supposed to be secret but are photographed and the pictured given universal currency are new methods of warfare. They are designed to frighten the opponent into making political concessions, just as a defeat in what used to be called war resulted in political concessions.

Penetration is a method of warfare which only the Soviet Universal State has developed efficiently. It consists in operations by one country within another with the object of weakening the resistance of the penetrated country, leading to its eventual absorption by the penetrator. The use of this weapon of war is particularly vicious when the penetrator uses native sons to accomplish his purpose, thus camouflaging his activities and taking full advantage of beneficial domestic laws.

It is doubtful whether this issue will be raised at Geneva, although it was once raised by an American Secretary of State, Bainbridge Colby. We speak of the outlawing of the atom and hydrogen bombs; we do not speak of the possibility of outlawing the equally deadly weapon of penetration. It is equally deadly because as a result of the defensive measures taken against it, all free peoples may lose their freedoms and thus become weakened in their war against an expanding enemy empire.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

ALLERGIC DESENSITIZATION

When the antihistamine drugs were introduced in the middle 1940's, many persons, including some in the medical profession, felt that here at last was a final solution to the problems of allergy. (Allergy, as you know, is being sensitive to various foods, pollens, and other substances, and is estimated to affect at least ten per cent of the population). These antihistamines did prove to be of great value in treating the symptoms of contact dermatitis (inflammation of the skin from contact with some offending substance), hives, "stuffy head colds," and other allergic conditions. However, we are warned that in no case should sole reliance be placed for treatment and that this applies particularly to the treatment of hay fever.

What is the treatment for hay fever? The treatment of choice is to desensitize the patient, that is, make him less sensitive to the effects of the ragweed pollen (sometimes other pollens are to blame for the symptoms). This is done by injection of the ragweed antigen, or antibody as it is called, into the patient by syringe, beginning several weeks before the onset of the ragweed season.

In many cases, especially when the antigen is going to be effective in reducing the severity of the hay fever attacks, there are various side effects, such as itching, hives, and rapid heart beat, which appear after the injection and which may so upset the patient that he may feel that the "cure is worse than the disease." This is where the use of the antihistamines has been found extremely helpful. Not only do they cut down on these side effects from the desensitization injections but they seem to increase the effectiveness of the injections themselves; they seem to increase the power of the antibody being injected.

Dr. C. J. Malloy of the Department of Medicine, McGill University, Montreal, tells of 24 cases treated with this combination of ragweed antigen and antihistamine, injected within a fraction of an inch of each other, with excellent results in 21 of the 24 cases. These cases ranged from 20 to 42-year-of-age and had been chosen for this particular type of treatment because they had had such severe hay fever or just sensitivity that it was not desirable that they be desensitized. Yet they had reacted so strongly, in a manner affecting the whole body, to the injection of the antibody or desensitizing agent, that it had not been possible to give them the maximum dose needed to desensitize them. The injection of the antihistamine, at the same time as the antigen, succeeded in cutting down these side reactions so that the only symptoms felt by seven of the twenty-four patients was a mild drowsiness. As mentioned above, 21 of the 24 had excellent results with relief of the hay fever when that season arrived. The particular histamines used were Histadyl and Chlor-tripolon.

Those who are anxious to become desensitized and thus avoid hay fever but who have strong reactions to the desensitizing injections will receive much help from the use of the antihistamines along with these injections.

Unwept, Unhonored and Unsung

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—One of the most futile sports in Washington these hot July days and nights has been to speculate on what will come out of the Big Four conference at Geneva.

Some of the advance expertising has been utterly fantastic. Yet it has served to build up a super-optimism that world peace and complete disarmament will result.

Old hands at this international conference business are skeptical of any such outcome. Some counselors are advising that Geneva may be the second most disappointing conference held in recent years. Top honors in this field are still given to the Bermuda conference of Eisenhower, Churchill and Bidault in December 1953. Nothing came out of that but cliches and platitudes.

THERE WILL, HOWEVER, be a lot of power around the table when Eisenhower, Eden, Faure and Bulganin sit down together. It will be the first peacetime—or at least the first cold war conference of the heads of government.

Some surprises are possible. Yet no negotiated settlements of outstanding crises are contemplated.

There is no agenda for the conference. They will decide what to talk about after they get there. But it is considered unlikely the Big Four will be able to agree on even what all the causes of tension are.

Some of the causes of tension the Russians may want to bring up, the United States will not want to discuss. And vice versa. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has mentioned "the activities of international communism" and "Eastern European satellites" as causes of tension. The Russians will consider this no business of the other powers.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER and Secretary Dulles have both said that the question of reunification of Germany would be discussed. There is increasing evidence, however, that any concessions which the Russians want to make on Germany will not be given to the three major western powers, but directly to German Chancellor Adenauer in Moscow later on.

On the other hand, the Russians may want to bring up problems relating to Communist China, Korea, Formosa and Indochina. Secretary Dulles has said flatly: "I would not expect Far Eastern questions to come up."

On the number one topic of disarmament and control of atomic weapons, President Eisenhower declared in a recent press conference:

"We don't intend to discuss substantive problems. But this question might come up: Where would we find the best group, the best channel or the best method to place this problem . . . to come up with an answer that at least we can start studying?"

THAT IS THE MOST to expect from Geneva. It will define a limited list of problems which can be tackled later at special conferences of foreign ministers, ambassadors or technical experts who can deal with specific problems like the Far East and disarmament.

As Secretary Dulles has said: "It may take weeks, months and years to solve these problems."

Geneva is therefore simply an exploratory conference. It will seek new paths and new ways in which to approach problems that have defied solution for the past generation. If the Big Four find these paths, they will conquer the Summit.

THE CASTLE THAT WENT FOR A SONG

THE CHATEAU OF HAUTEFORT—near Perigueux, France—WAS GIVEN TO BERTRAN de BORN BY KING HENRY II OF ENGLAND BECAUSE THE TROUBADOUR COMPOSED A STIRRING ELEGY MOURNING THE DEATH OF THE MONARCH'S SON

A Castle for A Song!

The Chateau of Hautefore, which is still standing near Perigueux, France, was given by Henry II, king of England to Bertran de Born, a celebrated troubadour (1140-1214) as a reward for a song of mourning composed on the death of the king's son Henry Shortcoat in 1183. Henry II who was also Duke of Aquitania and master of the chateau was so touched upon hearing the elegy that he rewarded the composer with the castle.

Today's Look at Geneva

Big 4 Speeches Are Same But Tones Are Different

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(This is an analysis based on information from the principal capitals of the world, where the Geneva Conference is the topmost topic of discussion.)

"The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau."

This might well describe the events at the outset of the Geneva Conference. For the speeches have the same meaning as always—though the tones are different.

Despite all the fanfare and the publicity buildup, the public statements by each of the Big Four puts the case exactly where it has been for the last ten years.

President Eisenhower didn't have to go all the way to Switzerland to find out that, if the Soviet Union can "negotiate" the withdrawal of American troops from Europe and bring about the breakup of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by cajolery and nice talk in place of the bluster and threats which have proved futile heretofore, they would do so and call it a "relaxation of tension."

YET THAT'S what Premier Bulganin did in his opening address. He says he wants an over-all agreement for Europe and, even before it is an established fact, he suggests that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization be suspended and indeed dissolved. Not content with a program to weaken the free world militarily in Europe and leave it at the mercy of the big Red armies, the Soviet spokesman went further and proposed that the allies surrender in Asia, too, by turning over Formosa to the Red Chinese, thus rewarding the aggressor in the Far East.

All this isn't surprising. They've known about it in intelligence circles in London for a long time and have been warning the top diplomats of the Soviet schemes. They've known about it in Washington and have "briefed" President Eisenhower about it. But, with characteristic good nature, the President chooses to look at the brighter side—he isn't going to frown and fume over the Russian pronouncement. Instead he's going to keep on insisting that the conference make some agreements that will be worth while. When the conference is over, he wants to be able to say that he tried hard to be friendly and accomplish something.

MR. EISENHOWER'S opening remarks restated the Western position firmly and with a well-defined outline on each point, so that there was no chance of misunderstanding. The Soviet rulers should know the west isn't going to retreat and surrender—but they think Americans are so anxious for peace at any price that they are ready to give up the defense of Europe and take a chance on the Russian Bear.

So far as the British diplomats are concerned, this kind of conference may give them an opportunity to try their talents of versatility and adroitness. They'll offer many variations on the President's plan and try every device in diplomacy's notebook to see if there isn't a common ground.

It would be easy to say that the Bulganin speech was delivered for "public consumption" and that privately there may be some chance for his withdrawal from fixed positions. But, curiously enough, this Geneva Conference doesn't permit of a double standard in policy because it is for the most part being conducted in the open where peoples can read about it. Hence, for the Soviets to concede that there could be really free elections among the satellite states, as urged by the allies, is to propose a loss of control of those countries by the Soviets. Conversely, the Bulganin suggestion that NATO be dismantled and, even before a general security plan for all of Europe becomes effective, that the defense plans of the allies be scrapped looks as if the Soviet "summiteers" think Mr. Eisenhower and his colleagues can be easily deceived.

What is amazing is that Bulganin made his proposal seriously. He must have known it would get nowhere. There are diplomats in some European capitals who see all of this as part of preconceived strategy—to outline the divergent positions, to appear to be trying to harmonize them and finally to argue that, since there is a virtual stalemate, the thing to do is to let matters stay as they are indefinitely.

This would mean acquiescence by the west in the status quo. It would mean leaving Germany dismembered. It would mean maintaining Soviet control of the sattelites with big armies of occupation. Maybe after a week of exchanging compliments and lofty talk, the "summiteers" will say: "Well, after all, it's better than war—so why not drift along?"

The key to peace will then revert to the peoples of Germany and eastern Europe. Will they accept the status quo as a permanent settlement? Probably not. So, while the crisis in Europe may be deferred for some time, the fundamental issues causing it will not go unresolved forever.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Paris—The miracle of flight across the Atlantic between dusk and dawn in a machine weighing fifty tons by itself alone, and manned by a crew of ten, seems to make little impression on most of the passengers. Some undoubtedly are excited, but affect to be unconcerned. Those who, on the sleepers, peel down after the ship leaves Gander, NF., about half-past eleven, and crawl into Pullman bunks, are not showing bravado. They do go to sleep and they seem to curl a lofty lip at a thrilling experience, for it certainly is not natural for man to fly three or four miles above the world.

By the dawn's early light, Leonie Shattuck, the wife of Harold, who runs the Schrafft chain of restaurants and confectionery stores in New York, came down the aisle of our Constellation, blinking her brown eyes and flexing her dimples, draped in a wrapper with toothbrush and make-up and a jumble of stuff in both hands and arms.

"Did you sleep well?"

"I was dead to the world," Leonie said. "But I can't find my eyebrow pencil and a girl can't land in Paris, France, Europe, without eyebrow pencil."

The night before, which was only five hours before because, meanwhile, we had been dashing toward this dawn, Captain Howard Hall, of TWA, who lives in Kansas City and commutes to his work in New York, had come down the aisle visiting the passengers. He had taken the ship up at Idlewild at 5:30 of a hot afternoon. At 9,000 feet, he had turned her over to Berg Bradford, the relief pilot, and the robot, on a course just outside Cape Cod, for Gander, a flight of four and one-half hours. The pursers, Robert Maisch and John Taylor, and Miss Donna Crist, the hostess, had been serving splits of champaigne on the house and the mood of some of the passengers was slightly effervescent.

Captain Hall is a little gray. He flew the mails before passenger traffic was organized. He has been with TWA 27 years, he flew warplanes to London as a ferry pilot before we got in and he does not know how many times he has flown the North Atlantic. Nevertheless, his respect for his task is undiminished, for flight is still unnatural to man and these enormous masses of machinery with thousands of interdependent working parts are capable of the most trying crochets.

One tiny gear giving way may project its failure to a whole engine. A tube no bigger than a soda straw, cracking under pressure, may disable all the rest of an engine, which then must be silenced, adding that much weight to the burden of the other three. Emergencies are rare. There are statistics on their rarity, compiled to reassure passengers. But a captain cannot switch on a statistic to take up the job of an idle engine and Captain Hall's deeper meaning was just about that when he said, somewhere over Maine, that "After Gander, we really go to work."

The captain always takes her up and puts her down. And after Gander the captains of this big Constellation and hundreds of other great ships of other nationalities, lines and models, are constantly beset by more and worse challenges from weather and the fallibility of machinery than the master of the faultiest ocean vessel.

The navigator sits at a little, metal desk in a capsule compartment just aft of the aquiline beak of the Constellation. His task is almost constant throughout his watch, for it may be best to change course to avoid ill winds and take advantage of fair winds, as we did, flying far to the south of Shannon, Ireland, which was to have been off to our left about seven, a. m. Instead, we made our land-fall south of Brest, when an island with a lighthouse came into view.

The flight engineer sits across a narrow aisle from the navigator constantly watching a board of dials, whose tiniest manifestation may call for quick, competent action. For example, about three hours out of Gander, with most of the passengers asleep or trying to doze, a slightly unusual sound came one of the engines—a "rough" sound and a strange rhythm, meaning nothing to a layman. Clifford Hunter, the engineer, diagnosed this fault and did something about the "mixture" so quickly that the strange sound vanished after a minute or so. During the approach to Brest he discussed family matters with a passenger who has two daughters and a son and flashes their pictures on strangers without provocation. Mr. Hunter has two daughters and a son. They both would have preferred a third daughter but were resigned to their situation.

In this weird world of the future, this young man works at a desk high in the sky and his job takes him to Paris about four times a month. In my own youth, I rather hoped to be a candy-butcher and run from Chicago to Peoria, sleeping on cushions in a day-coach during the lay-over.

We came over France at 19,000 feet with lintey shreds of white some distance down. Miss Crist had served ham and eggs, orange juice, cereal and cream, and coffee and cleared away all the trays but one. Mrs. Harold Ross, the widow of the irascible humorist who started the New Yorker, had offered to be helpful, but Miss Crist said it wasn't allowed. Suddenly, the Constellation simply dropped from under us and the last tray hopped up from the lap of the man across the aisle. One of the stewards went down on his back. A woman came out of the dressing room with rouge all over her only dress. It was not a deep drop by comparison with many bumps over our western mountains.

We circled Orly Field and touched down on time.

Captain Hall turned the Constellation over to her new ship's company for her journey on to Cairo. Our crew filed out in a group. Their eyes were tired. They said they were heading straight for a hot bath and bed. In 48 hours they would pick up a ship, perhaps the same one, for the trip back to New York.

Water Loss

The Mediterranean Sea loses more water by evaporation than is replaced by rivers flowing into it and rain on its surface, the losses being replaced by inflows from the Atlantic Ocean and the Black Sea.

MILITARY BALLOT

Some 325,000 young men and women of the State of New York, who are serving in the armed forces of our country, may vote in the general election on November 8 by military ballot.

To obtain a military ballot, a serviceman may file an application or he may write a letter giving his full name and rank, his home residence address and his military address. Applications or letters must be subscribed by the serviceman but need not be sworn to nor attested.

The spouse, parent or child of a serviceman who resides in the same election district as the serviceman and who accompanies him may also vote a military ballot. The application for the military ballot for such person is the same as that used by the serviceman.

The Division for Servicemen's Voting, which is located at 164 State Street, Albany 1, N. Y. has post card applications available to any person or organization requesting them. They must be mailed to reach Albany by October 31.

Our military forces are entitled to be advised of their voting rights so that they may participate in the election.

You can render a great public service to these people by letting them know of their rights.

TOWN NEIGHBORS

Vacation time, when the United States and Canada are each other's best travel customers, reminds people on both sides of the border that the other folks are quite friendly and really quite familiar.

In places like International Falls, Minn., and Fort Frances, Ontario, across the Rainy River, residents live together like relatives the year around.

At Rotary club meetings everybody sings "The Star Spangled Banner" and "O Canada", then they all toast the President and the Queen. The Canadians like to buy gadgets and see Sunday movies in Minnesota. The Americans like to buy food and go fishing in Ontario.

Newspapers, radio broadcasts, concerts, club meetings and civic celebrations are all shared with casual enjoyment by citizens of both countries. International marriages are frequent occurrences.

This seems easy because the two cities are so close. But it wouldn't happen if the people and their governments didn't want it to happen.

East Berlin and West Berlin are even closer, but the Russian government still chooses to keep it a divided city, with the border an interference instead of a link.

CONGRESSIONAL DELAYS

It's hot in Washington, D. C., these days and like the rest of us the members of Congress work better when the temperature is more moderate. Yet it is possible that Congress will not reach adjournment on schedule. If it should it will be because some legislation will get fast handling — too fast, maybe — and other legislation, some of it very necessary, will be postponed until next year.

For some reason Congress manages to go along in low gear for the first half of each session, then has to turn on the speed in the last weeks. This means that some work is neglected and some is not done as well as it might be.

Perhaps if long, meaningless speeches that find their way into the Congressional record were never made some time could be saved in the early days of a session. Full debate of an issue is one thing but often Senators and Representatives intend to impress constituents rather than to contribute anything to the discussion of a bill.

Congress works hard—that fact must not be overlooked. But it wastes time, too. And it might be possible for those in charge to schedule legislation more evenly so that bottlenecks don't occur at the end of the sessions. It is certainly a problem the members of Congress should want to do something about.

'These Days'

THE UNREALITIES OF STATESMANSHIP

William Graham Summer wisely stated the case against unrealities which become political problems when he said:

". . . The whole method of abstract speculation on political topics is vicious. It is popular because it is easy; it is easier to imagine a new world than to learn to know this one; it is easier to embark on speculations based on a few broad assumptions than it is to study the history of states and institutions; it is easier to catch up a popular dogma than it is to analyze it to see whether it is true or not. All this leads to confusion, to the admission of phrases and platitudes, to much disputing but little gain in the prosperity of nations."

This is one of the problems with which the great gentlemen who meet at Geneva must deal. They are faced by a series of unrealities in which their own peoples and most of the peoples of the world have somehow come to believe.

For instance, the rights of weak and backward nations, self-determination as Woodrow Wilson put it, are unrealities. Weak and backward nations live today, as they always have lived, by the consent of the strong powers until, for one or another historic reason, they themselves become strong. Belgium, for example, can only be a free nation, as long as its protectors are able to defend it. Twice Germany has demonstrated that Belgium cannot successfully be defended. Had Germany won either World War I or World War II, Belgium would have become a state within the German Empire.

Many intelligent persons in most countries believe that colonialism is unjust. But when they employ the term, colonialism, they are thinking in terms of the 19th Century, rather than in terms of the middle of the 20th Century. By colonialism they mean the possession or domination of a weak and backward country such as India by a powerful economic and military empire such as Great Britain. While remnants of such empires continue to exist, the general trend in that category has been one of recession.

The old colonialism was, generally speaking, expansion by seapower and exploitation by commerce and capital investment. The new colonialism, as practiced by Soviet Russia and Red China, is the expansion of political and geographical boundaries and the absorption of existing countries into the Soviet Universal State by their conversion into Marxist nations.

The constant quarrel with Great Britain and France over the remnants of their colonial empires is an emphasis on the insignificant compared with the vast growth of the new colonialism in the Soviet Universal State which has since 1938 increased its population from 180,000,000 to approximately 900,000,000 souls. As a matter of reality, India could be included to the extent that its sympathies lie with the Soviet Universal State although its declarations are for neutrality.

Another unreality that is generally accepted as a true condition is the assumption that peace is not war. The Cold War should have convinced the world that war is of many devices in the current practice. For instance, ll the announcements of new weapons, of expansion of atomic and hydrogen bombs, of great explosions which are supposed to be secret but are photographed and the pictured given universal currency are new methods of warfare. They are designed to frighten the opponent into making political concessions, just as a defeat in what used to be called war resulted in political concessions.

Penetration is a method of warfare which only the Soviet Universal State has developed efficiently. It consists in operations by one country within another with the object of weakening the resistance of the penetrated country, leading to its eventual absorption by the penetrator. The use of this weapon of war is particularly vicious when the penetrator uses native sons to accomplish his purpose, thus camouflaging his activities and taking full advantage of beneficial domestic laws.

It is doubtful whether this issue will be raised at Geneva, although it was once raised by an American Secretary of State, Bainbridge Colby. We speak of the outlawing of the atom and hydrogen bombs; we do not speak of the possibility of outlawing the equally deadly weapon of penetration. It is equally deadly because as a result of the defensive measures taken against it, all free peoples may lose their freedoms and thus become weakened in their war against an expanding enemy empire.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

ALLERGIC DESENSITIZATION

When the antihistamine drugs were introduced in the middle 1940's, many persons, including some in the medical profession, felt that here at last was a final solution to the problems of allergy. (Allergy, as you know, is being sensitive to various foods, pollens, and other substances, and is estimated to affect at least ten per cent of the population). These antihistamines did prove to be of great value in treating the symptoms of contact dermatitis (inflammation of the skin from contact with some offending substance), hives, "stuffy head colds," and other allergic conditions. However, we are warned that in no case should sole reliance be placed for treatment and that this applies particularly to the treatment of hay fever.

What is the treatment for hay fever? The treatment of choice is to desensitize the patient, that is, make him less sensitive to the effects of the ragweed pollen (sometimes other pollens are to blame for the symptoms). This is done by injection of the ragweed antigen, or antibody as it is called, into the patient by syringe, beginning several weeks before the onset of the ragweed season.

In many cases, especially when the antigen is going to be effective in reducing the severity of the hay fever attacks, there are various side effects, such as itching, hives, and rapid heart beat, which appear after the injection and which may so upset the patient that he may feel that the "cure is worse than the disease." This is where the use of the antihistamines has been found extremely helpful. Not only do they cut down on these side effects from the desensitization injections but they seem to increase the effectiveness of the injections themselves; they seem to increase the power of the antibody being injected.

Dr. C. J. Malloy of the Department of Medicine, McGill University, Montreal, tells of 24 cases treated with this combination of ragweed antigen and antihistamine, injected within a fraction of an inch of each other, with excellent results in 21 of the 24 cases. These cases ranged from 20 to 42-year-of-age and had been chosen for this particular type of treatment because they had had such severe hay fever or just sensitivity that it was not desirable that they be desensitized. Yet they had reacted so strongly, in a manner affecting the whole body, to the injection of the antibody or desensitizing agent, that it had not been possible to give them the maximum dose needed to desensitize them. The injection of the antihistamine, at the same time as the antigen, succeeded in cutting down these side reactions so that the only symptoms felt by seven of the twenty-four patients was a mild drowsiness. As mentioned above, 21 of the 24 had excellent results with relief of the hay fever when that season arrived. The particular histamines used were Histadyl and Chlor-tripolon.

Those who are anxious to become desensitized and thus avoid hay fever but who have strong reactions to the desensitizing injections will receive much help from the use of the antihistamines along with these injections.

Unwept, Unhonored and Unsung

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—One of the most futile sports in Washington these hot July days and nights has been to speculate on what will come out of the Big Four conference at Geneva.

Some of the advance expertising has been utterly fantastic. Yet it has served to build up a super-optimism that world peace and complete disarmament will result.

Old hands at this international conference business are skeptical of any such outcome. Some counselors are advising that Geneva may be the second most disappointing conference held in recent years. Top honors in this field are still given to the Bermuda conference of Eisenhower, Churchill and Bidault in December 1953. Nothing came out of that but cliches and platitudes.

THERE WILL, HOWEVER, be a lot of power around the table when Eisenhower, Eden, Faure and Bulganin sit down together. It will be the first peacetime—or at least the first cold war conference of the heads of government.

Some surprises are possible. Yet no negotiated settlements of outstanding crises are contemplated.

There is no agenda for the conference. They will decide what to talk about after they get there. But it is considered unlikely the Big Four will be able to agree on even what all the causes of tension are.

Some of the causes of tension the Russians may want to bring up, the United States will not want to discuss. And vice versa. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has mentioned "the activities of international communism" and "Eastern European satellites" as causes of tension. The Russians will consider this no business of the other powers.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER and Secretary Dulles have both said that the question of reunification of Germany would be discussed. There is increasing evidence, however, that any concessions which the Russians want to make on Germany will not be given to the three major western powers, but directly to German Chancellor Adenauer in Moscow later on.

On the other hand, the Russians may want to bring up problems relating to Communist China, Korea, Formosa and Indochina. Secretary Dulles has said flatly: "I would not expect Far Eastern questions to come up."

On the number one topic of disarmament and control of atomic weapons, President Eisenhower declared in a recent press conference:

"We don't intend to discuss substantive problems. But this question might come up: Where would we find the best group, the best channel or the best method to place this problem . . . to come up with an answer that at least we can start studying?"

THAT IS THE MOST to expect from Geneva. It will define a limited list of problems which can be tackled later at special conferences of foreign ministers, ambassadors or technical experts who can deal with specific problems like the Far East and disarmament.

As Secretary Dulles has said: "It may take weeks, months and years to solve these problems."

Geneva is therefore simply an exploratory conference. It will seek new paths and new ways in which to approach problems that have defied solution for the past generation. If the Big Four find these paths, they will conquer the Summit.

A Castle for A Song!

The Chateau of Hautefore, which is still standing near Perigueux, France, was given by Henry II, king of England to Bertran de Born, a celebrated troubadour (1140-1214) as a reward for a song of mourning composed on the death of the king's son Henry Shortcoat in 1183. Henry II who was also Duke of Aquitania and master of the chateau was so touched upon hearing the elegy that he rewarded the composer with the castle.

Today's Look at Geneva

Big 4 Speeches Are Same But Tones Are Different

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(This is an analysis based on information from the principal capitals of the world, where the Geneva Conference is the topmost topic of discussion.)

"The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau."

This might well describe the events at the outset of the Geneva Conference. For the speeches have the same meaning as always—though the tones are different.

Despite all the fanfare and the publicity buildup, the public statements by each of the Big Four puts the case exactly where it has been for the last ten years.

President Eisenhower didn't have to go all the way to Switzerland to find out that, if the Soviet Union can "negotiate" the withdrawal of American troops from Europe and bring about the breakup of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by cajolery and nice talk in place of the bluster and threats which have proved futile heretofore, they would do so and call it a "relaxation of tension."

YET THAT'S what Premier Bulganin did in his opening address. He says he wants an over-all agreement for Europe and, even before it is an established fact, he suggests that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization be suspended and indeed dissolved. Not content with a program to weaken the free world militarily in Europe and leave it at the mercy of the big Red armies, the Soviet spokesman went further and proposed that the allies surrender in Asia, too, by turning over Formosa to the Red Chinese, thus rewarding the aggressor in the Far East.

All this isn't surprising. They've known about it in intelligence circles in London for a long time and have been warning the top diplomats of the Soviet schemes. They've known about it in Washington and have "briefed" President Eisenhower about it. But, with characteristic good nature, the President chooses to look at the brighter side—he isn't going to frown and fume over the Russian pronouncement. Instead he's going to keep on insisting that the conference make some agreements that will be worth while. When the conference is over, he wants to be able to say that he tried hard to be friendly and accomplish something.

MR. EISENHOWER'S opening remarks restated the Western position firmly and with a well-defined outline on each point, so that there was no chance of misunderstanding. The Soviet rulers should know the west isn't going to retreat and surrender—but they think Americans are so anxious for peace at any price that they are ready to give up the defense of Europe and take a chance on the Russian Bear.

So far as the British diplomats are concerned, this kind of conference may give them an opportunity to try their talents of versatility and adroitness. They'll offer many variations on the President's plan and try every device in diplomacy's notebook to see if there isn't a common ground.

It would be easy to say that the Bulganin speech was delivered for "public consumption" and that privately there may be some chance for his withdrawal from fixed positions. But, curiously enough, this Geneva Conference doesn't permit of a double standard in policy because it is for the most part being conducted in the open where peoples can read about it. Hence, for the Soviets to concede that there could be really free elections among the satellite states, as urged by the allies, is to propose a loss of control of those countries by the Soviets. Conversely, the Bulganin suggestion that NATO be dismantled and, even before a general security plan for all of Europe becomes effective, that the defense plans of the allies be scrapped looks as if the Soviet "summitteers" think Mr. Eisenhower and his colleagues can be easily deceived.

What is amazing is that Bulganin made his proposal seriously. He must have known it would get nowhere. There are diplomats in some European capitals who see all of this as part of preconceived strategy—to outline the divergent positions, to appear to be trying to harmonize them and finally to argue that, since there is a virtual stalemate, the thing to do is to let matters stay as they are indefinitely.

This would mean acquiescence by the west in the status quo. It would mean leaving Germany dismembered. It would mean maintaining Soviet control of the sattelites with big armies of occupation. Maybe after a week of exchanging compliments and lofty talk, the "summiteers" will say: "Well, after all, it's better than war—so why not drift along?"

The key to peace will then revert to the peoples of Germany and eastern Europe. Will they accept the status quo as a permanent settlement? Probably not. So, while the crisis in Europe may be deferred for some time, the fundamental issues causing it will not go unresolved forever.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Paris—The miracle of flight across the Atlantic between dusk and dawn in a machine weighing fifty tons by itself alone, and manned by a crew of ten, seems to make little impression on most of the passengers. Some undoubtedly are excited, but affect to be unconcerned. Those who, on the sleepers, peel down after the ship leaves Gander, NF., about half-past eleven, and crawl into Pullman bunks, are not showing bravado. They do go to sleep and they seem to curl a lofty lip at a thrilling experience, for it certainly is not natural for man to fly three or four miles above the world.

By the dawn's early light, Leonie Shattuck, the wife of Harold, who runs the Schrafft chain of restaurants and confectionery stores in New York, came down the aisle of our Constellation, blinking her brown eyes and flexing her dimples, draped in a wrapper with toothbrush and make-up and a jumble of stuff in both hands and arms.

"Did you sleep well?"

"I was dead to the world," Leonie said. "But I can't find my eyebrow pencil and a girl can't land in Paris, France, Europe, without eyebrow pencil."

The night before, which was only five hours before because, meanwhile, we had been dashing toward this dawn, Captain Howard Hall, of TWA, who lives in Kansas City and commutes to his work in New York, had come down the aisle visiting the passengers. He had taken the ship up at Idlewild at 5:30 of a hot afternoon. At 9,000 feet, he had turned her over to Berg Bradford, the relief pilot, and the robot, on a course just outside Cape Cod, for Gander, a flight of four and one-half hours. The pursers, Robert Maisch and John Taylor, and Miss Donna Crist, the hostess, had been serving splits of champaigne on the house and the mood of some of the passengers was slightly effervescent.

Captain Hall is a little gray. He flew the mails before passenger traffic was organized. He has been with TWA 27 years, he flew warplanes to London as a ferry pilot before we got in and he does not know how many times he has flown the North Atlantic. Nevertheless, his respect for his task is undiminished, for flight is still unnatural to man and these enormous masses of machinery with thousands of interdependent working parts are capable of the most trying crochets.

One tiny gear giving way may project its failure to a whole engine. A tube no bigger than a soda straw, cracking under pressure, may disable all the rest of an engine, which then must be silenced, adding that much weight to the burden of the other three. Emergencies are rare. There are statistics on their rarity, compiled to reassure passengers. But a captain cannot switch on a statistic to take up the job of an idle engine and Captain Hall's deeper meaning was just about that when he said, somewhere over Maine, that "After Gander, we really go to work."

The captain always takes her up and puts her down. And after Gander the captains of this big Constellation and hundreds of other great ships of other nationalities, lines and models, are constantly beset by more and worse challenges from weather and the fallibility of machinery than the master of the faultiest ocean vessel.

The navigator sits at a little, metal desk in a capsule compartment just aft of the aquiline beak of the Constellation. His task is almost constant throughout his watch, for it may be best to change course to avoid ill winds and take advantage of fair winds, as we did, flying far to the south of Shannon, Ireland, which was to have been off to our left about seven, a. m. Instead, we made our land-fall south of Brest, when an island with a lighthouse came into view.

The flight engineer sits across a narrow aisle from the navigator constantly watching a board of dials, whose tiniest manifestation may call for quick, competent action. For example, about three hours out of Gander, with most of the passengers asleep or trying to doze, a slightly unusual sound came one of the engines—a "rough" sound and a strange rhythm, meaning nothing to a layman. Clifford Hunter, the engineer, diagnosed this fault and did something about the "mixture" so quickly that the strange sound vanished after a minute or so. During the approach to Brest he discussed family matters with a passenger who has two daughters and a son and flashes their pictures on strangers without provocation. Mr. Hunter has two daughters and a son. They both would have preferred a third daughter but were resigned to their situation.

In this weird world of the future, this young man works at a desk high in the sky and his job takes him to Paris about four times a month. In my own youth, I rather hoped to be a candy-butcher and run from Chicago to Peoria, sleeping on cushions in a day-coach during the lay-over.

We came over France at 19,000 feet with linty shreds of white some distance down. Miss Crist had served ham and eggs, orange juice, cereal and cream, and coffee and cleared away all the trays but one. Mrs. Harold Ross, the widow of the irascible humorist who started the New Yorker, had offered to be helpful, but Miss Crist said it wasn't allowed. Suddenly, the Constellation simply dropped from under us and the last tray hopped up from the lap of the man across the aisle. One of the stewards went down on his back. A woman came out of the dressing room with rouge all over her only dress. It was not a deep drop by comparison with many bumps over our western mountains.

We circled Orly Field and touched down on time.

Captain Hall turned the Constellation over to her new ship's company for her journey on to Cairo. Our crew filed out in a group. Their eyes were tired. They said they were heading straight for a hot bath and bed. In 48 hours they would pick up a ship, perhaps the same one, for the trip back to New York.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

New P.W. Kearney Book Is Reviewed

Woodstock, July 19—The prevention of fires is always a vital subject, but with the advent of the atomic age and the development of the hydrogen bomb, it has assumed staggering proportions. Paul W. Kearney's latest book on how to fight and how to prevent fires, recently published by Simon and Schuster, brings to the layman a vivid—and certainly terrifying — picture of what fire can do, and a reassuring outline of what he can do to combat and prevent it.

Mr. Kearney, who is well-known in this area along with his wife Claire Kearney as the proprietors of the Watson Hollow Inn in West Shokan, has put into practice there all of the measures he prescribes in his book for making a two-story rambling frame house as fireproof as possible.

At the outset he points out that most of us "live in a fire-trap!" and explains in detail how the smallest blaze can spread into a disastrous one, how quickly the deadly fumes can kill without the flames ever having touched their victims.

"Every day in the United States we set fire to nearly 1,400 buildings — virtually one a minute. The cost is enormous, in property values destroyed and in human lives lost," he warns. And fire is "nothing if not democratic." In his files are clippings of dwelling fires that rated quite high in both the Social Register and Dun and Bradstreet. These, including industrial, farm, hotel and tenement fires take their yearly toll, whereas many of them might have been avoided if a few simple rules had been followed, and a few dollars invested in the right equipment.

Once the nature of fire has been discussed and explained, this becomes essentially a "do it yourself" book on fire prevention.

Once the first chapter has been digested, the reader who doesn't take a quick inventory of his household, examine the structural avenues for fire and make a quick decision to do something about it, either lives in a cave or is looking forward to being cremated like "Sam Magee."

Mr. Kearney provides an efficient "Home Fire Safety Check List" through which the home owner is able to determine exactly how fire-prone his dwelling may be, as well as a quiz on how much he may know about what to do in case fire breaks out. It is comprehensive and searching, designed to ferret out all of the hidden as well as obvious sources of fire.

His descriptions of people in the throes of attempting to report a fire might seem ludicrous if they were not so tragically and diabolically true. Mr. Kearney is a firm believer in planting the seed of knowledge before the fire ever occurs and if the lessons are learned, those caught in a fire will do the right thing. He makes an earnest plea for home fire drills and family conferences on the correct procedure to follow.

In clear and simple terms the author offers a wealth of suggestions on how to at least partially fire-proof the home, what kind of extinguishers, fire alarm and sprinklers to purchase and install, along with addresses as to where they may be obtained. "Clearly," he states, "there's nothing mysterious about making your home firesafe, even if it isn't of what is commonly miscalled 'fireproof construction.' Firefighters are right when they say that 'no building is any more fireproof than it contents,' and that's been proven by many million-dollar blazes in structures which couldn't burn." He advises home owners to "catch the hostile fire early in the game by means of an automatic alarm which will be actuated by the inevitable rising of heat."

A new avenue in fire hazards is also explored in the realm of A-bombs, H-bombs, C-bombs, "and whatever comes next!" In this connection he says it is spacious to argue that "if an H-bomb hits, it's all over." This is doubtless true for those within an area of some 60 square miles around ground zero. "But for the adjoining area of some 2,000 square miles, the best opinion is that damage will not be total but will range from severe to minor. Since these bombs are essentially incendiary weapons on a grand scale, this not only spells a whale of a lot of fire fighting, but means that everybody else is going to be too busy to help you."

Although Mr. Kearney offers a tremendous amount of practical advice, there isn't a line of technical, hard-going information. It's vivid and exciting reading and should certainly prove rewarding to anyone who follows his expert advice. Included also are detailed accounts of what other cities and communities are doing to combat the dread outbreak of fire, chapters on lightning, "torch clothing," and habits which may lead to destruction.

Mr. Kearney says that his passion is to poke around the ruins while they are still hot, trying to find out how the fire happened. He is an honorary chief of fire departments from coast to coast, an honorary life member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, a member of the Fire Prevention Committee of the President's Conference on Fire Prevention, and of the National Fire Protection Association, with headquarters in Boston. He has written a dozen books about the various aspects of the problem of staying alive, four of them on the subject of fire. For twenty-five years his chief interest has been fire prevention.

Playhouse Features Caine Mutiny Play

Woodstock, July 19—The leading role of Greenwald, played in the New York production of the Caine Mutiny Court-Martial by Henry Fonda, will be taken by Michael Howard, Playhouse director, when the play opens its week's run here, Tuesday, July 26. Howard, who has directed the productions at the Playhouse for the past two seasons, made his stage debut here with spectacular success as one of the mobsters in "Kiss Me Kate" which opened the season.

Robert Alvin, who has been capturing audiences as the loveable Max Pinkus in "The Fifth Season" during the past week, will play Captain Queeg, the character made famous in New York by Lloyd Nolan, and by Humphrey Bogart in the motion picture version of Caine Mutiny.

The tensely dramatic and exciting play by Herman Wouk is concerned with the trial of the man who took control of the ship during World War 2, in the Pacific. The scene of the court martial is laid in the San Francisco courtroom, and was judged one of the finest court room plays ever written, climaxing in one of the most dramatic scenes in theatre literature.

The large cast includes Norman Rose, Pinkus's dress business partner in "The Fifth Season"; James Karen who returns to the Playhouse for his first role this season (last year's Ensign Pulver of Mr. Roberts); Frank Daly, an established Playhouse favorite; Jack Sydow, who appeared here several seasons ago, and newcomer Archie Smith.

With this unusually large cast of navy personnel, the demand for naval officer uniforms is large. Michael Howard would appreciate hearing from any former officer in the neighborhood who would be willing to lend a uniform for the run of the play, through Sunday, July 31.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

New P.W. Kearney Book Is Reviewed

Woodstock, July 19—The prevention of fires is always a vital subject, but with the advent of the atomic age and the development of the hydrogen bomb, it has assumed staggering proportions. Paul W. Kearney's latest book on how to fight and how to prevent fires, recently published by Simon and Schuster, brings to the layman a vivid—and certainly terrifying — picture of what fire can do, and a reassuring outline of what he can do to combat and prevent it.

Mr. Kearney, who is well-known in this area along with his wife Claire Kearney as the proprietors of the Watson Hollow Inn in West Shokan, has put into practice there all of the measures he prescribes in his book for making a two-story rambling frame house as fireproof as possible.

At the outset he points out that most of us "live in a firetrap!" and explains in detail how the smallest blaze can spread into a disastrous one, how quickly the deadly fumes can kill without the flames ever having touched their victims.

"Every day in the United States we set fire to nearly 1,400 buildings — virtually one a minute. The cost is enormous, in property values destroyed and in human lives lost," he warns. And fire is "nothing if not democratic." In his files are clippings of dwelling fires that rated quite high in both the Social Register and Dun and Bradstreet. These, including industrial, farm, hotel and tenement fires take their yearly toll, whereas many of them might have been avoided if a few simple rules had been followed, and a few dollars invested in the right equipment.

Once the nature of fire has been discussed and explained, this becomes essentially a "do it yourself" book on fire prevention.

Once the first chapter has been digested, the reader who doesn't take a quick inventory of his household, examine the structural avenues for fire and make a quick decision to do something about it, either lives in a cave or is looking forward to being cremated like "Sam Magee."

Mr. Kearney provides an efficient "Home Fire Safety Check List" through which the home owner is able to determine exactly how fire-prone his dwelling may be, as well as a quiz on how much he may know about what to do in case fire breaks out. It is comprehensive and searching, designed to ferret out all of the hidden as well as obvious sources of fire.

His descriptions of people in the throes of attempting to report a fire might seem ludicrous if they were not so tragically and diabolically true. Mr. Kearney is a firm believer in planting the seed of knowledge before the fire ever occurs and if the lessons are learned, those caught in a fire will do the right thing. He makes an earnest plea for home fire drills and family conferences on the correct procedure to follow.

In clear and simple terms the author offers a wealth of suggestions on how to at least partially fire-proof the home, what kind of extinguishers, fire alarm and sprinklers to purchase and install, along with addresses as to where they may be obtained. "Clearly," he states, "there's nothing mysterious about making your home firesafe, even if it isn't of what is commonly miscalled 'fireproof construction.' Firefighters are right when they say that 'no building is any more fireproof than it contents,' and that's been proven by many million-dollar blazes in structures which couldn't burn." He advises home owners to "catch the hostile fire early in the game by means of an automatic alarm which will be actuated by the inevitable rising of heat."

A new avenue in fire hazards is also explored in the realm of A - bombs, H - bombs, C - bombs, "and whatever comes next!" In this connection he says it is spacious to argue that "if an H-bomb hits, it's all over." This is doubtless true for those within an area of some 60 square miles around ground zero. "But for the adjoining area of some 2,000 square miles, the best opinion is that damage will not be total but will range from severe to minor. Since these bombs are essentially incendiary weapons on a grand scale, this not only spells a whale of a lot of fire fighting, but means that everybody else is going to be too busy to help you."

Although Mr. Kearney offers a tremendous amount of practical advice, there isn't a line of technical, hard-going information. It's vivid and exciting reading and should certainly prove rewarding to anyone who follows his expert advice. Included also are detailed accounts of what other cities and communities are doing to combat the dread outbreak of fire, chapters on lightning, "torch clothing," and habits which may lead to destruction.

Guest Speaker Heard At Youth Day Rally

Solomon W. Luckie Jr., addressed a gathering at the Youth Day program held at the Franklin Street AME Zion Church on Sunday.

In the highlights of the address he said, "The opportunities in this day and generation are great. No one need cry, 'I cannot find a niche in which I can fit.' The crying need of today is for both general and specialized education. If one is prepared, one can demand a place in whatever field he wishes to enter."

Mr. Luckie reviewed the recent appointments of Negroes to important posts in the state and nation and indicated that these men appointed were well prepared and that was the reason they were designated with signal honors.

"These and greater opportunities await our youth," he said, "if they concentrate and avail themselves of a thorough education."

Following the speech, the Rev. Sampson Greene, minister of Zion Church expressed his thanks to Mr. Luckie for bringing such a challenging message to the youth of Kingston.

George Armstrong served as organist; De Costa Dawson, visiting organist and Hilda Johnson, Ruth Harris, Carol Van der Zee, Mrs. Cora Brodhead and John and Joseph Lawson served as ushers.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—A woman was killed and a man was seriously injured late last night when the car in which they were riding left the road and struck a tree. Police were unable to identify the woman immediately. The driver of the car was George Hanna, about 30, of Saratoga, who was in serious condition at a hospital. Police said Hanna was attempting to make a left turn but swung too widely. The car grazed one tree, then hit a second one head on, they said.

Rosendale

Centralization Plan Outlined at Meeting

A meeting was held Thursday evening, July 14, at the Rosendale Union Free school to acquaint interested persons in the village with the facts gathered by the Centralization Study Committee. This committee was formed six months ago by the various boards of education, trustees, district superintendents and others, for the purpose of preparing some plan of action for relieving overcrowded, inadequate schools and for providing a junior-senior high school.

The following school districts are included in the study that has been made: Marbletown Central School District No. 3, Kerhonkson Union Free School-Wawarsing 1, Accord Union Free School-Rochester 2, Rosendale Union Free School No. 1, Rochester district schools at Whitfield, Pine Bush, Cherrytown, Pataukunk, Liebhardt, Granite, Tabasco, Palentown, Kerhonkson Heights, Mettacahonts, Rock Hill, Mombaccus, and Rochester Center; Wawarsing No. 26 at Soccannessing; Hurley No. 3, Locust Avenue, Marbletown No. 2 at Clove and in the Rosendale district, No. 3 at Creek Locks, No. 4 at Maple Hill, No. 5 at Cottekill and No. 6 at Whiteport.

According to a prepared booklet which was handed out to those present, the committee believes that the following plan, which has been endorsed by the State Education Department as a good program for education, is the best answer to the school problem confronting this area. Further, it is as inexpensive as is consistent with present educational standards and should not impose a tax burden greater than that which is bound to come in the very near future if all of the districts have to "go it alone." The booklet gives the reminder that this is but a suggestion, and details could be modified by the voters after centralization is once approved.

Briefly, the plan makes provisions for the following:

1. The building of a new junior-senior high school centrally located in the area.

2. The operation of a kindergarten through sixth grade schools at Kerhonkson, Stone Ridge, Accord and the building of a new K-6 grade school in the Rosendale area, plus additional classrooms and facilities where needed.

3. The cost of the foregoing alterations, additions, new construction and equipment is estimated at two million dollars.

The Centralization Study Committee gives reasons for suggesting centralization as the best answer to the problem. They state that centralization of the 24 school districts of the area into one administrative and educational unit offers the opportunity for expanding together to provide the program and facilities for better education for all children. Regardless of what local district organization is maintained, increased costs of education in the future are certain.

They stated that high school tuition to Kingston, for a large part of the area, as an example, has risen in the last five years from $40 to $153 per pupil, and high school and elementary tuition to Kerhonkson in the past several years has nearly doubled.

They summarize that centralization of the districts in the Rondout Valley area will offer the best means of sharing the burden of this increase and will provide better standards of education in our schools.

What will centralization do? The committee states: 1. Provide the best possible elementary and high school education for every boy and girl in this area. 2. Provide an outstanding curriculum including enriched elementary education, liberal arts, industrial arts, commercial and business education and an education conducive to adequate preparation for the college of the student's choice. 3. Insure that extra-curricular activities will be provided. 4. Give assurance of classroom space and facilities for both elementary and high school pupils. 5. Make possible greater efficiency in long term planning and administration. 6. Permit coordination of pupil transportation arrangements in the best interests of the most children with consequent economy in operation. 7. Give an opportunity for all children to attend kindergarten upon first entrance to school and 8. provide the opportunity to vote at school meetings on such matters as the approval of annual budgets, building sites, and bond issues for new school facilities.

Woman Dies in Crash

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—A woman was killed and a man was seriously injured late last night when the car in which they were riding left the road and struck a tree. Police were unable to identify the woman immediately. The driver of the car was George Hanna, about 30, of Saratoga, who was in serious condition at a hospital. Rosendale

Centralization Plan Outlined at Meeting

A meeting was held Thursday evening, July 14, at the Rosendale Union Free school to acquaint interested persons in the village with the facts gathered by the Centralization Study Committee. This committee was formed six months ago by the various boards of education, trustees, district superintendents and others, for the purpose of preparing some plan of action for relieving overcrowded, inadequate schools and for providing a junior-senior high school.

The following school districts are included in the study that has been made: Marbletown Central School District No. 3, Kerhonkson Union Free School-Wawarsing 1, Accord Union Free School-Rochester 2, Rosendale Union Free School No. 1, Rochester district schools at Whitfield, Pine Bush, Cherrytown, Pataukunk, Liebhardt, Granite, Tabasco, Palentown, Kerhonkson Heights, Mettacahonts, Rock Hill, Mombaccus, and Rochester Center; Wawarsing No. 26 at Soccannessing; Hurley No. 3, Locust Avenue, Marbletown No. 2 at Clove and in the Rosendale district, No. 3 at Creek Locks, No. 4 at Maple Hill, No. 5 at Cottekill and No. 6 at Whiteport.

According to a prepared booklet which was handed out to those present, the committee believes that the following plan, which has been endorsed by the State Education Department as a good program for education, is the best answer to the school problem confronting this area. Further, it is as inexpensive as is consistent with present educational standards and should not impose a tax burden greater than that which is bound to come in the very near future if all of the districts have to "go it alone." The booklet gives the reminder that this is but a suggestion, and details could be modified by the voters after centralization is once approved.

Briefly, the plan makes provisions for the following:

1. The building of a new junior-senior high school centrally located in the area.

2. The operation of a kindergarten through sixth grade schools at Kerhonkson, Stone Ridge, Accord and the building of a new K-6 grade school in the Rosendale area, plus additional classrooms and facilities where needed.

3. The cost of the foregoing alterations, additions, new construction and equipment is estimated at two million dollars.

The Centralization Study Committee gives reasons for suggesting centralization as the best answer to the problem. They state that centralization of the 24 school districts of the area into one administrative and educational unit offers the opportunity for expanding together to provide the program and facilities for better education for all children. Regardless of what local district organization is maintained, increased costs of education in the future are certain.

They stated that high school tuition to Kingston, for a large part of the area, as an example, has risen in the last five years from $40 to $153 per pupil, and high school and elementary tuition to Kerhonkson in the past several years has nearly doubled.

They summarize that centralization of the districts in the Rondout Valley area will offer the best means of sharing the burden of this increase and will provide better standards of education in our schools.

What will centralization do? The committee states: 1. Provide the best possible elementary and high school education for every boy and girl in this area. 2. Provide an outstanding curriculum including enriched elementary education, liberal arts, industrial arts, commercial and business education and an education conducive to adequate preparation for the college of the student's choice. 3. Insure that extra-curricular activities will be provided. 4. Give assurance of classroom space and facilities for both elementary and high school pupils. 5. Make possible greater efficiency in long term planning and administration. 6. Permit coordination of pupil transportation arrangements in the best interests of the most children with consequent economy in operation. 7. Give an opportunity for all children to attend kindergarten upon first entrance to school and 8. provide the opportunity to vote at school meetings on such matters as the approval of annual budgets, building sites, and bond issues for new school facilities.

Esopus Voters Ballot July 30 On New Property

Voters of consolidated School District No. 1 of the town of Esopus will vote on July 30 at 7:30 p. m., whether to authorize trustees permission to purchase the Henry Van Aken property on the Clay road for $14,000. Voting will be held at the Town of Esopus Auditorium.

The property of some 18½ acres was approved by State Education Department and county health officials, who made a recent survey.

A SPOKESMAN for the trustees pointed out that the property's flat topography, excellent drainage, low development cost, and proximity to Port Ewen's potential population center makes this site an excellent choice for a new school.

All voters of former school districts, 1, 12, 13 and 15 are eligible to vote. Preliminary plans are presently being drawn by architect Rolfe Dryer. It is contemplated that a visit to Albany in the near future by the school committee will seek final approval of preliminary plans by the State Education Department.

This culminates two years of preparatory work by the Town of Esopus School Improvement Association under the chairmanship of John Spinnenweber.

Bishop Says Home Repair Program Functions Right

The Federal Housing Administration's Title I Program covering home modernization and repair has been purged of objectionable features and is now functioning in the best interests of the public, it was declared here today by Bert Bishop, owner of Bert Bishop's Home Improvement concern in Kingston.

Mr. Bishop is a director of NERSICA, the national association which represents the home improvement contractors of the United States. The group is on the membership roster of the Title I Industry Advisory Committee of the FHA, which was set up in line with Commissioner Norman P. Mason's desire to have the advice of businessmen in the planning and administration of that government agency.

Under the FHA Title I program, home owners may borrow up to $2,500 from local lending institutions for property improvement purposes, and repay the loan in monthly installments over periods ranging up to three years.

Government investigators last year disclosed that in some areas unethical dealers and salesmen were victimizing home owners through false advertising claims and high pressure sales tactics. These operators have since been barred from doing business with FHA.

"Under the new regulations," Mr. Bishop said, "there has been a notable decrease in irregularities in the FHA home improvement program. Allan P. Backman, executive vice president of the National Better Business Bureau, recently reported a marked reduction in complaints lodged directly with his office or forwarded to him by the 800 Chambers of Commerce located in smaller communities which have no local Better Business Bureaus.

"We join with Mr. Backman in lauding FHA Commissioner Mason and Title 1 Director Cyrus B. Sweet for this happy turn of events."

NERSICA, organized in 1934, cooperates closely with governmental agencies as well as better business bureaus and law enforcement authorities in promoting sound trade practices for the protection of the public. Among its major activities is a broad program of consumer education on protection of the family housing investment through sound maintenance and progressive improvement. It is the sponsor of National Home Improvement Month, annual March drive to preserve and improve the nation's $220 billion investment in its approximately 50 million dwelling units.

Drowns in Canal

Lockport, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—John M. Burke, 63, was drowned here yesterday when he fell 40 feet into the Barge Canal. Police said Burke, an electrician employe of the Barge Canal, fell from a lock on which he was working.

Austria became a republic in 1919.

Buffalo Police Are After Bank Bandit

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Police today were seeking a lone bandit who walked into the Buffalo Savings Bank early yesterday afternoon, shoved a note at a woman teller demanding money and then fled with $2,200.

It was the second daylight holdup in the busy bank. Two little more than a month. Two men held up the bank on June 6 and made off with about $2,300.

James R. Wagg, 20, of Pickering, Ont., and Jack Langley, 27, of Toronto, have been arrested and charged with the first holdup. They were also involved in another Buffalo bank holdup.

Mrs. Wendy Ruhland, 19, the teller who was held up, said she did not know whether the bandit was armed or not. She said she pushed the alarm button on the floor as soon as he left the window.

The bank is located at Main and Huron streets, a busy downtown intersection. Police said the bandit just walked out of the bank and disappeared in the heavy crowds on the street.

Buffalo Police Are After Bank Bandit

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Police today were seeking a lone bandit who walked into the Buffalo Savings Bank early yesterday afternoon, shoved a note at a woman teller demanding money and then fled with $2,200.

It was the second daylight holdup in the busy bank. Two little more than a month. Two men held up the bank on June 6 and made off with about $2,300.

James R. Wagg, 20, of Pickering, Ont., and Jack Langley, 27, of Toronto, have been arrested and charged with the first holdup. They were also involved in another Buffalo bank holdup.

Mrs. Wendy Ruhland, 19, the teller who was held up, said she did not know whether the bandit was armed or not. She said she pushed the alarm button on the floor as soon as he left the window.

The bank is located at Main and Huron streets, a busy downtown intersection. Police said the bandit just walked out of the bank and disappeared in the heavy crowds on the street.

Bishop Says Home Repair Program Functions Right

The Federal Housing Administration's Title I Program covering home modernization and repair has been purged of objectionable features and is now functioning in the best interests of the public, it was declared here today by Bert Bishop, owner of Bert Bishop's Home Improvement concern in Kingston.

Mr. Bishop is a director of NERSICA, the national association which represents the home improvement contractors of the United States. The group is on the membership roster of the Title I Industry Advisory Committee of the FHA, which was set up in line with Commissioner Norman P. Mason's desire to have the advice of businessmen in the planning and administration of that government agency.

Under the FHA Title I program, home owners may borrow up to $2,500 from local lending institutions for property improvement purposes, and repay the loan in monthly installments over periods ranging up to three years.

Government investigators last year disclosed that in some areas unethical dealers and salesmen were victimizing home owners through false advertising claims and high pressure sales tactics. These operators have since been barred from doing business with FHA.

"Under the new regulations," Mr. Bishop said, "there has been a notable decrease in irregularities in the FHA home improvement program. Allan P. Backman, executive vice president of the National Better Business Bureau, recently reported a marked reduction in complaints lodged directly with his office or forwarded to him by the 800 Chambers of Commerce located in smaller communities which have no local Better Business Bureaus.

"We join with Mr. Backman in lauding FHA Commissioner Mason and Title 1 Director Cyrus B. Sweet for this happy turn of events."

NERSICA, organized in 1934, cooperates closely with governmental agencies as well as better business bureaus and law enforcement authorities in promoting sound trade practices for the protection of the public. Among its major activities is a broad program of consumer education on protection of the family housing investment through sound maintenance and progressive improvement. It is the sponsor of National Home Improvement Month, annual March drive to preserve and improve the nation's $220 billion investment in its approximately 50 million dwelling units.

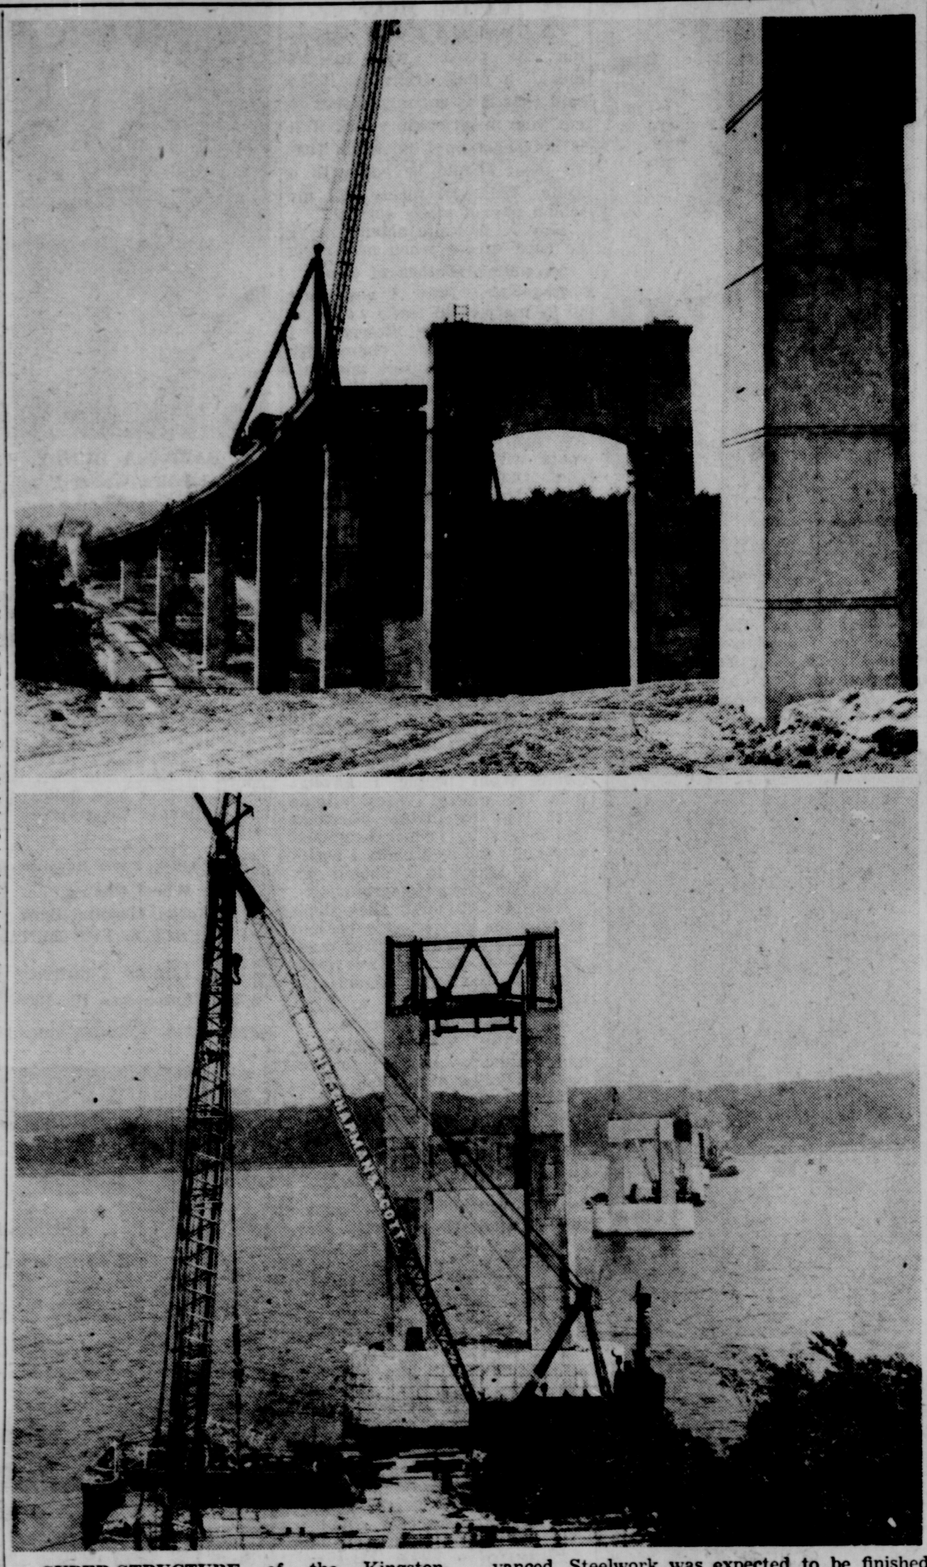
Campers Blamed

Middlesex, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Volunteer firemen spent most of last night and early this morning wetting down a 10 acre wooded area which was burned over along the eastern shore of Canandaigua Lake yesterday. The fire was brought under control by 150 volunteer firemen from nearby areas. State Forest Ranger George Bailey said a charred tent and gasoline stove were found in the ashes leading him to believe careless campers were responsible for the fire.



SUPER-STRUCTURE of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge is rapidly taking form as steelwork reached the fifth land pier last week and was headed further along this week toward the Hudson where more piers are taking form in the water. Work is also progressing on the piers for the east approach across the river. Views here are of the first large section of steelwork and of the river piers where work is well advanced. Steelwork was expected to be finished to the sixth pier by the middle of this week and other steel was due to arrive for continuing on Pier 7. Workmen are still finishing Pier 12, the largest on the west-approach section. Contestants Seen Growing Conservative on Quiz Shows

(By CHARLES MERCER)

New York, July 19 (AP)—Several million Americans will tune in their television sets this evening (Tuesday) to CBS-TV when an Italian-born New York gentleman will try to answer some questions about opera. They will watch, mesmerized, to see whether he will work his way to a final question which, if he answers it correctly, will pay him $64,000.

"The public has flipped on this $64,000 question program," a fellow said. Indeed it has.

WE, THE captive audience, have watched in recent weeks as a New York policeman who's an expert on Shakespeare took his solid $16,000 winnings and departed rather than risk its loss by going for $32,000. We saw an Indiana schoolteacher grab off $8,000 and beat it. And we gaped last week when a Bible-reading grandmother from Camp Hill, Pa., settled for $32,000, foregoing the big $64,000 question.

When the grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer, passed up the chance at the big prize something passed from my life. I shall miss Mrs. Kreitzer. She is the kind of piercing-eyed, firm-jawed woman I like to have on my side. She'd stand up well on any skirmish line. When she dug in, rather than advancing last week, I began to reassess my evaluation of the American people.

FOR YEARS I've believed that we're an aggressive people, instinctively gamblers at heart. Now I wonder.

Since one of the chores of this department is to go around asking people to forecast what's going to happen in television and radio, it's about time the department did a little forecasting itself. Seizing a crystal ball and a saw and going away out on a limb, I gaze into the crystal while sawing at the limb and I see:

Nobody ever will try for the $64,000 question. Furthermore, as time progresses and nobody tries for it, I see this big question in every department of the quiz getting easier and easier. It's a pipe quesion, a give-away. But nobody will try it.

Why, Well, we have become a basically conservative people. Perhaps this is because of inflation. (Remember when the $64,000 question was worth only $64 on radio and everybody was equally excited?) We realize the fact of inflation, but we still can't grasp its implications.

FEW OF US can visualize what things $64,000 will buy that $32,000 will not buy. For example, you can buy a nice house for $32,000. But how many really know what sort of a house you can buy for double the amount? Thus, when you have the hard cash in your mitt for that $32,000 house, why chuck away the reality for the unknown dream?

People know more and more about less and less these days. There are experts in everything. An expert is a shrewd character, shrewd enough to know the erudition can trip on a detail, that an Einstein can slip on a quick arithmetical multiplication. Experts don't take chances.

THE MOST EXPERT expert to appear thus far on the $64,000 question was Mrs. Kreitzer. When she turned down the chance at the big question last week, she quoted from St. Paul: "Let your moderation be known unto all men." It was, she said, from Paul's letter to the Ephesians. A few minutes after the show went off the air, while talking to reporters, she exclaimed: "Oh, dear! I said it wrong! It's from the Philippians, chapter four, fifth verse."

A small slip. But the sort that makes anyone hesitant to risk losing $32,000 in the hope of winning $64,000.

His wife, Betty, was hospitalized in serious condition with head injuries. Stacy was the son of Mrs. T. M. Stacy (532 112th street West) New York city.

If you enjoy the taste of coconut, you'll sure like these recipes. They come from Albuquerque, N. M.

Mrs. Donald Robb, who ljves there, gave them to us, explaining that she uses these coconut sandwiches when she entertains friends in the afternoon.

Coconut Cheese Sandwich Loaf

Four packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, ¾ cup shredded coconut, cut; 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 unsliced sandwich loaf white bread, 1 unsliced sandwich loaf whole wheat bread, 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine, 1 cup shredded coconut, tinted pink.

Cream 2 packages of the cheese with a fork until soft and smooth. Add ¾ cup coconut and mayonnaise and mix well. Set aside.

Trim crusts from top, bottom and sides of bread, using sharp knife. Slice each loaf lenghwise into 5 even slices.

Spread a whole wheat slice with half the cream cheese mixture. Top with a white slice. Spread white slice with 1 tablespoon of the soft butter or margarine, then sprinkle with half the chopped water cress. Repeat until there are 5 alternating layers of whole wheat and white bread, topping with a whole wheat slice.

Soften remaining 2 packages of cheese with cream. Spread over top and sides of loaf. Arrange tinted coconut in a border around top edge. Wrap loaf loosely in waxed paper or damp cloth and chill in refrigerator 3 hours or longer. Serve cold, garnished with sprigs of water cress, if desired. Slice and serve in whole or half slices.

Note: Remaining slices of bread may be used to make a second sandwich loaf, or individual sandwiches.

Coconut Cucumber Sandwiches

Combine ingredients and let drain for a few minutes. Spread on buttered thin slices of white bread. Cut in desired shapes. Makes 1 cup filling.

TOMORRO'S DINNER: Lamb and vegetable stew in casserole with potato topping, corn on cob, crisp rolls, butter or margarine, sliced oranges, bananas and shredded coconut, coffee, tea, milk.

Skirts Into Roses Via Hooked Rugs To Be Shown at Bee

Great-grandmothers' old wool skirts are blooming like the rose these days. In fact, they are roses—pink, red, yellow — even if the skirts were originally black turned green from age.

The roses are a part of the design on hooked rugs made by modern method. So if you are a housewife who can't dispose of grandmother's fine wool dresses because of sentiment or your own wool suits because of thrift, it would probably behoove you to trip down to Cherry Valley on Saturday, July 23, and see how wool cloth can be transformed into handsome hooked rugs. On that day, hooked rug enthusiasts will convene at an all-day Hooking Bee commencing at 10 a. m. according to an announcement by the Woman's Program of the New York State Department of Commerce. The Hooking Bee will be sponsored by Mrs. Carolyn A. Collett, well-known teacher of the modern method.

THE BEE will be held in open tents on the lawn of the First Presbyterian Church, Alden street. Outstanding authorities will discuss the modern method of hooking rugs; several frames will be handy for hooking demonstrations; and choice examples of rugs hooked by modern methods will be on display. Admission is free, and nothing except food is for sale. Guests who wish to may bring their own rugs for suggestions and criticisms from experts. Mrs. Collett emphasizes that "the Hooking Bee is not a commercialized project but an attempt to assist women who are interested in producing better results."

Transforming grandmother's skirts into roses is achieved by a new method of hooking, one which utilizes very narrow, short, strips of material—bleached if necessary, then dyed by special techniques to preplanned colors. The originator of this new method, Mrs. Pearl McGown, will be the featured speaker of the program. Author of the books "You Can Hook Rugs" and "Color in Hooked Rugs," Mrs. McGown directed the national 4-day exhibit of hooked rugs held in Worcester, Mass., last year, which more than ten thousand people from all over the country attended. Mrs. McGown will speak on "Why You Should Hook."

SPECIAL FABRIC-DYEING processes and techniques essential to preparing material for use in the new method will be explained and demonstrated by Mrs. Sally Newhall, known among rug-making craftsmen as one of the foremost color specialists and teacher of teachers of rug-hooking from coast to coast.

Participating in the program and individually advising guests who bring their own rugs for criticism and suggestions will be Adult Education teachers of rug-hooking from Buffalo, Rochester, Ithaca, and other large New York state cities.

A thousand hooked rug enthusiasts from all over the state attended the first Hooking Bee, presented last year; and Cherry Valley restaurants and women's organizations are already planning food supplies ample for the even larger attendance expected.

She is. A knife should never be used except when necessary.

Wedding Clothes of Men

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married in three weeks at two-thirty in the afternoon. I live in a simple community where striped trousers and cutaway coats would look very much out of place. I was wondering if it would be proper for the men to wear white linen coats with dark blue trousers (not tuxedos) instead of the white trousers and blue coats which you suggest for a summer daytime wedding and which I do not happen to like. I would appreciate hearing from you on this matter.

Answer: Don't have them wear white coats and dark trousers. Instead they could wear their dark blue suits and plain blue or gray ties.

Answering Telegrams

Dear Mrs. Post: I was married two weeks ago and at that time received a number of telegrams from people I haven't seen for several years. Some were sent by distant relatives and others by former neighbors who knew me as a child. I would like to know if I should acknowledge these telegrams.

Answer: Although they don't demand an answer as a present does, it is certainly better manners to write a few words thanking them for their kind telegram.

Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Post: Would birth announcements be sent to people who know of the baby's arrival. Might they feel hurt if they knew announcements were sent but not to them?

Answer: Those who were told about it would not be sent cards unless you would like them to see the announcements because they are especially pretty.

Smog Report

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP)—An osteopathic physician says that 20 years' studies have led him to believe that smog contributes to diseases of old age. Dr. Alexander Levitt of Brooklyn told reporters at the meeting of the American Osteopathic Assn. here yesterday that heavy atmospheric pollution over many U. S. cities has brought about a deficiency in air-borne iodine. He said that lack of Iodine has caused a mass attack of chronic fatigue in the national population. He said it causes hypothyroidism—a condition which also brings early gray hair, obesity, visual difficulties and sterility.

Jones Dairy, Dobler's Battle to 2-2 Standoff

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

Even off the lower tee, Gus Schrowang's hole-in-one on Twaalfskill's No. 3 hole is a remarkable achievement.

A traditionally tough par-3, the No. 3 hole is one of the roughest in Ulster county. The only one that comes close is the No. 7 at Shawangunk. No. 2 and No. 6 are the birdie holes at Twaalfskill, never No. 3 . . . Until Schrowang that is.

The big question around the Twaalfskill clubhouse Sunday afternoon was, how much did Gus' bar check amount to? As you know it is golf tradition that a man who shoots a hole-in-one must buy a drink for everybody in the house. And Gus couldn't have picked a nicer day, with 26-man teams on the premises from Twaalfskill and Woodstock.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

The inter-club duel was a remarkable exhibition in view of the stifling heat that sent the thermometer soaring over the 100 mark. . . . Burt Haver gave his partner a career-low medal of 73 and stil they were fleeced by a couple of youngsters—Steve DeLisio and Eric Knutsen. . . . Jimmy Turck posted a brilliant 31 and best-balled 30 for the front nine with Allen Waterous, only to trail a redhot Hughes-Meyers combination by a stroke. . . . Clarence "Dubby" Raichle was recovering from an attack of the flu and had to sit out the match. But, as usual, he did yoeman service as Twaalfskill's matchmaker.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Reports that George Hughes' game was in a state of collapse were without foundation. He only birdied the second, eagled the No. 4, shot a 34 and went 5-3-3-3 on the second four holes. Who last remembers a golf match being cut down because of the heat. . . . President Tony DeLisio of Woodstock and his partner, John Marcato, found Twaalfskill president, Bob Umpleby, and Dr. John Olivet a tougher combination than they expected. When Dick Overbagh bowed out after nine holes because of the heat, Alvin Boice held the fort alone against Bill Van Aken and George Svirsky and brought home a winner. The best-ball, one-point match was an interesting variation from the traditional three-point Nassau and proved popular with the players.

These are wondrous days for the short hitters, days when baked fairways turn 175 yard drives into 200 yarders plus. Dutchess Country Club is understandably proud of its new state women's champion—Miss Naomi Venable, a 37-year-old insurance salesman. . . . She had won the Dutchess club title five times before making a successful bid for state laurels. . . . Woodstock Country Club women have their annual Invitational scheduled Tuesday, July 26.

• Birdies and Bogies:

Frank Thompson, the veteran Wiltwyck golfer, has filed his annual entry for the Freeman hole-in-one tournament on Aug. 7 at Twaalfskill. Woodstock CC's white-haired patriarch, Harry Hohnhorst, was a clubhouse visitor Sunday at Twaalfskill. So was J. C. Hutchins, the Woodstock pro. Dr. Douw Meyers fired a hole in one on Twaalfskill's No. 2 a few days ago. But it went into the record as a three. It seems the doctor sliced his first ball out of bounds. . . . Singer Frankie Laine shouldn't be singing blues numbers for a while. Frankie was sole owner of Gene Littler in the Las Vegas Calcutta pool for the Tournament of Champions this year. Purchased for a "mere" $13,000, Littler ran off and hid with the title. Laine's ticket paid off a handsome $72,000—$59,000 clear profit. It was a wise man who once said: "The most difficult thing about golf is to learn not to talk about it."

Roy Campanella And Al Kaline Batting Leaders

New York, July 19 (AP)—Detroit and Brooklyn dominate the major league individual batting listings today. The Tigers' Al Kaline leads the American League in hitting with a .368 average, followed by teammate Harvey Kuenn at .325. Roy Campanella of the Dodgers is the National League pace-setter with .346 with Duke Snider, also of the Brooks, runnerup at .325.

Nellie Fox of the Chicago White Sox ranks third in the American League with a .323 mark and Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski, also boasting a .323 average, is third in the senior circuit.

Kaline went 6-for-19 last week and lost three points. Kuenn, in advancing from third gained five points on 8-for-20. Fox, with 7-for-25, suffered a three-point decline and dropped from second.

CAMPANELLA and Snider both saw limited service, but boosted their averages. Campy had five hits in 11 trips and raised his average 11 points. Snider, in advancing from fourth, picked up six points on 5-for-10. Campanella is sidelined with a bruised left hand and a virus attack has forced Snider out of the lineup.

Kluszewski showed a six-point batting increase during the week, climbing from fifth on 10-for-25. Big Klu and Snider are waging a duel for National League home run honors with Duke holding a 31 to 30 edge. Snider also is the runs batted in leader with 93.

In the American League Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees is tops in homers with 21 and Boston's Jackie Jensen has driven in the most runs, 73.

Wilson Defeats Irish Pat Lowry

New York, July 19 (AP)—Sugar Al Wilson hopes he won't have to wait so long for his next fight.

The Englewood, N. J. welter hadn't been to the post since March 7 until he whipped Irish Pat Lowry of Toledo, Ohio, last night at St. Nicholas Areana.

"That wasn't so bad though," he said in his dressing room, "the last time it was almost a year between fights."

Wilson, 145¾ to Lowry's 146, controlled the 10-round match except for the late stages to win an unanimous decision. Referee Ray Miller scored it 8-1-1, Judge Leo Birnbaum 5-4-1 and Judge Tony Rossi 6-4, all for Wilson. The Associated Press card for Wilson also was 6-4.

Crack Field Due For Annual Classic

With several past winners already entered, DeWitt Lake expects the classiest field in years for the annual "DeWitt 300" swimming classic Sunday at the Ulster county swimming resort.

Among the former champions slated to return are two-time winners, Gil Kelder of Rosendale and Cameron Page of Port Ewen.

Harry Streeter, who won the "300" about five years ago, is in training for a comeback. Several other aspirants visited DeWitt Lake last weekend to familiarize themselves with the course.

A newcomer to the DeWitt 300 but widely known because of his many victories in the Williams Lake races is Joe Heidcamp of Kingston.

Heidcamp has a flock of victories to his credit at Williams Lake and other resorts and showed fine form in his workout last weekend. Many have tabbed him as the man to beat this year.

NEW YORK—Sugar Al Wilson, 145¾, Englewood, N. J., outpointed Irish Pat Lowry, 146, Toledo, Ohio, 10.

Triplets Second In Eastern Loop

(By the Associated Press)

The Binghamton Triplets were in undisputed possession of second place in the Eastern League today, and were within a game of the league-leading Reading Indians.

A major part of the credit for that happy state of affairs must go to Binghamton's home running, Sam Suplizio. His twelfth-inning homer, his first hit in 14 at bats, drove in the winning run and enabled the Trips to shade Williamsport 4-3. Reading and Williamsport had been tied for second place.

The Schenectady Blue Jays held off a late challenge by Reading, and managed to eke out a 5-4 victory.

In the league's only other game, the Allentown Red Birds came up with three runs in the seventh to break a 3-3 deadlock and downed host Albany 6-3. The game between Elmira at Johnstown was rained out.

Hurler Zack Monroe worked hard for the Binghamton triumph. He went the entire 12-inning distance, struck out 16 men, walked one and gave up eight hits.

Adios Dotty Wins

Westbury, July 19 (AP)—Adios Dotty won her second straight race—the Stonybrook Pace in 2:04.4 last night at Roosevelt Raceway. Greentree Cathy finished second with Bear Cat third. The Stonybrook was the top event as the Grand Circuit started its second and final week at the Westbury Oval. Robert Myer drove Adios Dotty for owner R. C. Carpenter of Chester, N. Y. She returned $5.00.

MANILA — Italo Scortichini, 156, Italy, stopped Marshall Clayton, 150, New Orleans, 8.

Toronto Clings To League Lead

(By The Associated Press)

The Toronto Maple Leafs held the upper hand in their running battle for first place in the International League with the Havana Sugar Kings and Montreal Royals — but they still have a long way to go for another title.

Toronto, last year's champions, aided no end by home runs off the bats of veterans Sam Jethroe and Loren Babe subdued the Kings 8-6 last night and dropped them into third place as the Royals nipped the Columbus Jets 3-2.

In other games the Buffalo Bisons defeated Syracuse 6-2 to move into a tie for sixth place with the Chiefs. The Rochester Red Wings and the Richmond Virginians split a doubleheader. The Red Wings took the opener 5-2 and Richmond reversed the score in the nightcap.

Chisox Plan Right Hand Diet For Yankees

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—The storming Chicago White Sox are brewing a formula of spirit and strategy for their three-game series which begins tonight against the league-leading New York Yankees.

The Sox, whose seven-game winning streak ended yesterday against Baltimore, 3-0, will feed the Yankees a diet of righthanded pitchers. That's the strategy.

The spirit comes from their recent winning streak which has carried them into second place, two games behind the New Yorkers.

"We're keyed up," said General Manager Frank Lane, "and I think you'll find we'll give them a battle all the way. I look for us to take at least two out of three if not the whole series."

Lane, Chicago's No. 1 baseball enthusiast, agrees with Sox Manager Marty Marion's strategy of choosing three righthanders to face the Yankees.

"Marty's smart," said Lane. "With righthanders pitching the Yanks will have Eddie Robinson, Irv Noren and Joe Collins in the lineup instead of Elston Howard, Bill Skowron and Hank Bauer.

A Split second is the big difference!

A split second is the big difference in a double play. In your engine it's even more important. Unless your engine fires on the right 1/100 of a second, power works against you, not for you.

TCP is the Big Difference between Highest Octane Gasolines— gives you split-second "GO"

The more your car's engine needs high octane the more it needs TCP

Today's high compression engines are fantastic performers. A touch of your toe gets response in a split second.

But deposits that form in your car's engine during daily, short-trip driving soon take the edge off this fine response.

In a combustion chamber, for example, these deposits fire the gasoline a split second before the piston reaches firing position. When this happens, you don't get a full-power stroke. On spark plugs, they cause short circuits. Your engine "misses"—more power loss! And, high octane gasoline alone can't solve the problem.

It takes both high octane and TCP*.

TCP, a specially developed Shell additive blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, overcomes the deposits as they form. Because TCP stops pre-firing and spark plug "miss," it gives high octane split-second response.

See your Shell Dealer. Get Shell Premium with TCP. It's the most powerful gasoline you car can use!

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

Only Shell Premium Gasoline has both TCP and Top Octane!

SCOREBOARD

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

One pitcher can't solve the problem for last place Baltimore, but if nothing else, Jim Wilson is keeping the American League pennant race honest. None of the flag contenders has managed to get really fat on the Orioles with the 33-year-old righthander around.

Wilson, who pitched the lone no-hitter in the majors last season for Milwaukee, tops the Baltimore staff with seven victories. Four of them have been against the top teams in the league—New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Boston—and in none of the four did he give up more than four hits.

The San Diego, Calif., veteran, sold to the Oriole's by the Braves this spring, came up with a two-hitter yesterday to knock off the White Sox, who had won seven straight, 3-0. Chicago, looking ahead to the first place battle with New York that opens tonight, didn't get a hit after Gil Coan singled with two out in the third inning.

It was the third shutout of the season for Wilson, who also blanked New York (4-0 on four hits) and Boston (2-0 on four hits). He fanned five yesterday and walked none.

GUS TRIANDOS gave Wilson all the support he needed with a two-run homer in the first inning off loser Mike Fornieles. The other run came in the eighth on an error and Hal Smith's double.

The defeat left the Sox two games behind the Yankees, who were idle. The only other AL game went to Washington, 6-3 over Kansas City, which now has lost seven in a row.

In the National, Brooklyn retained a 12½ game lead despite a 9-5 defeat by Cincinnati as second place Milwaukee lost to New York 6-5. Philadelphia tumbled Chicago to its seventh and eighth straight losses, winning the wrapup of Sunday's suspended game 8-6 and taking a regularly scheduled contest 2-1.

Joe Black, the ex-Dodger, and reliefer Art Fowler were effective enough to halt Brooklyn although the crippled Brooks rallied for four runs in the seventh. That cut the Redleg lead to 6-5, but Stan Palys and Ted Kluszewski hit back-to-back homers to open a three-run ninth. It was the second of the game for Palys and No. 30 for the season for Kluszewski.

DUKE SNIDER, the major league leader with 31 home runs, was absent from the Brooklyn lineup because of a virus attack.

The Giants overhauled a 5-4 Milwaukee lead in the seventh when Billy Bruton dropped a fly ball in deep center field off the bat of Willie Mays for a two-run error. The Braves had taken the lead in the fifth with four runs. Warren Spahn, victim of the error, suffered his 10th defeat. Don Liddle won in relief.

Glen Gorbous belted a three-run homer to get the Phils rolling as the suspended game picked up in the last of the sixth inning. Herm Wehmeier went all the way and Roy Smalley hit a two-run homer in the nightcap triumph that sent the Phils into sixth place ahead of Cincinnati.

The Senators breezed in against the A's with Roy Sievers hitting two home runs and a double in three trips. He drove in three runs and scored three, coming home after his double on a home run by Eddie Yost.

Court Ruling Strengthens Helfand's Hand

New York, July 19 (AP)—Julius Helfand and the New York State Athletic Commission have won the first court test of the commission's power over managers, fighters and promoters.

Helfand's comments about a ruling by Justice Martin Frank of the state Supreme Court upholding the commission, hinted that new crackdowns are to be expected.

Helfand and his office crew have been studying the transcripts of testimony taken at the recent commission inquiry. The final results are pending but they may be unloaded tomorrow at the regular commission meeting.

"I BELIEVE this decision has strengthened the hand of the commission in its efforts to make for a cleaner sport and we shall go forward to accomplish this end," said Helfand in a statement, released through Marvin Kohn, commission press secretary.

The court yesterday upheld the right of the commission to bar a fighter (welterweight Chris Christensen of Denmark) from a fight after his manager (Charles Bauer) had been suspended. Bauer had been suspended with other managers for refusing to testify at a commission inquiry into activities of the Managers' Guild.

Helfand refused to sanction a match between Christensen and Gene Poirier of Niagara Falls next Monday. Bauer sought to compel the commission to lift the ban.

THE DODGERS got all their runs in the first inning.

Tom Ashdown led off, drawing a base on balls. Secreto singled. Garry Barnes banged a two-run double. Les Bovee singled, scoring Barnes.

Carpino settled down after that, allowing only singles by Len Bovee and Ashdown the rest of the way.

Dick Whiston's single drove Art Ferraro home in the fourth inning for the initial Red Sox run. Mike Ferraro walked and scored on a passed ball in the fifth.

Carpino got the other Sox hit, a two-bagger.

SCOREBOARD

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

One pitcher can't solve the problem for last place Baltimore, but if nothing else, Jim Wilson is keeping the American League pennant race honest. None of the flag contenders has managed to get really fat on the Orioles with the 33-year-old righthander around.

Wilson, who pitched the lone no-hitter in the majors last season for Milwaukee, tops the Baltimore staff with seven victories. Four of them have been against the top teams in the league—New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Boston—and in none of the four did he give up more than four hits.

The San Diego, Calif., veteran, sold to the Oriole's by the Braves this spring, came up with a two-hitter yesterday to knock off the White Sox, who had won seven straight, 3-0. Chicago, looking ahead to the first place battle with New York that opens tonight, didn't get a hit after Gil Coan singled with two out in the third inning.

It was the third shutout of the season for Wilson, who also blanked New York (4-0 on four hits) and Boston (2-0 on four hits). He fanned five yesterday and walked none.

GUS TRIANDOS gave Wilson all the support he needed with a two-run homer in the first inning off loser Mike Fornieles. The other run came in the eighth on an error and Hal Smith's double.

The defeat left the Sox two games behind the Yankees, who were idle. The only other AL game went to Washington, 6-3 over Kansas City, which now has lost seven in a row.

In the National, Brooklyn retained a 12½ game lead despite a 9-5 defeat by Cincinnati as second place Milwaukee lost to New York 6-5. Philadelphia tumbled Chicago to its seventh and eighth straight losses, winning the wrapup of Sunday's suspended game 8-6 and taking a regularly scheduled contest 2-1.

Joe Black, the ex-Dodger, and reliefer Art Fowler were effective enough to halt Brooklyn although the crippled Brooks rallied for four runs in the seventh. That cut the Redleg lead to 6-5, but Stan Palys and Ted Kluszewski hit back-to-back homers to open a three-run ninth. It was the second of the game for Palys and No. 30 for the season for Kluszewski.

DUKE SNIDER, the major league leader with 31 home runs, was absent from the Brooklyn lineup because of a virus attack.

The Giants overhauled a 5-4 Milwaukee lead in the seventh when Billy Bruton dropped a fly ball in deep center field off the bat of Willie Mays for a two-run error. The Braves had taken the lead in the fifth with four runs. Warren Spahn, victim of the error, suffered his 10th defeat. Don Liddle won in relief.

Glen Gorbous belted a three-run homer to get the Phils rolling as the suspended game picked up in the last of the sixth inning. Herm Wehmeier went all the way and Roy Smalley hit a two-run homer in the nightcap triumph that sent the Phils into sixth place ahead of Cincinnati.

The Senators breezed in against the A's with Roy Sievers hitting two home runs and a double in three trips. He drove in three runs and scored three, coming home after his double on a home run by Eddie Yost.

Court Ruling Strengthens Helfand's Hand

New York, July 19 (AP)—Julius Helfand and the New York State Athletic Commission have won the first court test of the commission's power over managers, fighters and promoters.

Helfand's comments about a ruling by Justice Martin Frank of the state Supreme Court upholding the commission, hinted that new crackdowns are to be expected.

Helfand and his office crew have been studying the transcripts of testimony taken at the recent commission inquiry. The final results are pending but they may be unloaded tomorrow at the regular commission meeting.

"I BELIEVE this decision has strengthened the hand of the commission in its efforts to make for a cleaner sport and we shall go forward to accomplish this end," said Helfand in a statement, released through Marvin Kohn, commission press secretary.

The court yesterday upheld the right of the commission to bar a fighter (welterweight Chris Christensen of Denmark) from a fight after his manager (Charles Bauer) had been suspended. Bauer had been suspended with other managers for refusing to testify at a commission inquiry into activities of the Managers' Guild.

Helfand refused to sanction a match between Christensen and Gene Poirier of Niagara Falls next Monday. Bauer sought to compel the commission to lift the ban.

Ex-Policeman Held For Wife's Murder

Sebring, Fla., July 19 (AP)—Thomas W. Mann Jr. has been charged with first degree murder in the 7-month-old death of his wife, Beverly.

The murder warrant was sworn out last night after Mann admitted the murder and led officers to his wife's shallow grave.

In a statement, Mann said he strangled his 26-year-old wife in the crook of his right arm Dec. 7. The body was found in a grave about 200 yards from a sandy trail.

Sheriff Pat Coker of Highlands county signed the affidavit for the murder charge.

Mann, a 33-year-old former Miami policeman, went with his attorney, Mark O'Quin of Miami, to the office of State Atty. Gunter Stephenson in Winter Haven to make the statement that cleared up the case.

The couple vanished Dec. 6, 1954, from their small home at Miami. Mann's car was found abandoned in Tampa Christmas Day, but no trace of the couple was found.

June L. Earl Is Chief Operator at Ballston Office

Miss June L. Earl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Sorenson of 66 Van Deusen street, here has been named chief operator of the New York Telephone Company's Ballston office.

Since October 1953 she has been assistant chief operator at Troy.

A native of Pine Hill, she attended Fleischmanns' High School and graduated from Kingston High School in 1940.

Miss Earl joined the telephone company at Kingston in 1946 as a long distance operator. In 1949 she was named junior service assistant and later the same year was appointed service assistant.

While a service assistant in Kingston, she was engaged from time to time in survey work throughout the Kingston and Poughkeepsie Telephone Districts. In 1953 Miss Earl was named acting assistant chief operator on the long distance switchboard at Albany.

Port Ewen Men

Gilligan boat, Mrs. Horvers said, they were "so exhausted" it took two men to lift each of them from the water.

SHE SAID another five minutes and it might have been too late, according to reports she received from the search party.

The men were transferred from the Gilligan boat to the tanker lifeboat and returned to the vessel.

Mrs. Horvers said the members of the search party reported that Strosky had gone in for a swim to cool off and got a cramp. Cornelius then grabbed a life preserver and plunged in after him.

Destination of the Dormoset is Albany, it was reported.

Vehicles Damaged

A two-car collision about 4:30 p. m. Saturday at the junction between Route 28 and 28A resulting in minor vehicular damage, has been reported to the Ulster county sheriff's office. The collision involved two 1954 passenger cars, one operated by Frederick Wooton, 49, of Newburgh, and the other by Mrs. Gloria Conerty, 24, of Jackson Heights, L. I., according to the report. The left front fender of the Wooton car and the right front fender strip of the other vehicle were reported damaged.

Troop-Carrier Base Planned In Westchester

Purchase, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—The air force proposes construction of a three-million-dollar reserve troop-carrier squadron base at Westchester county airport here.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of the First Air Force, told county officials yesterday:

"That squadron might well spell the difference between life and death for citizens of the Westchester-White Plains area in the event of an atomic attack."

BROWNE SAID the basing of 16 large "boxcar" troop-carrier planes at the airport here would permit speedy evacuation of personnel and the flying in of critically needed medicines and supplies.

Four suggested sites for the proposed 40-acre installation — on which the government would build a maintenance hangar, an apron and appurtenances — will be studied by air force and county engineers.

Two of the sites are on the western side of the 690-acre airport, wholly on county property. The two others are east of the airport boundary in Greenwich, Conn.

PLANS CALL for the proposed base to be staffed by a reserve complement of 125 officers and 455 airmen and a permanent party of 9 officers, 25 airmen and 133 civilian workers.

Browne estimated at yesterday's conference that spending by reservists and the permanent party and the purchase of various operating items would add more than one million dollars annually to the local economy.

The 137th Fighter Interceptor Squadron of the Air National Guard has been based here since 1948. It is now equipped with jet planes.

Compromise Proposed On Windfall Profits

New York, July 19 (AP)—Government officials say they are trying to get the builders and operators of a huge Brooklyn housing project to pay back alleged "windfall profits" amounting to some three million dollars.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Albert Buschmann said yesterday government officials have been negotiating for a week with lawyers for corporations that control the project, known as Farragut Gardens. He said the government is demanding return of the full three million dollars but the lawyers are seeking a compromise.

The negotiations have been adjourned until Aug. 10 to give the government time to consider the proposed compromise.

33 Firemen Felled By Smoke Monday

Schenectady, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Smoke felled 33 firemen last night as they battled a fire in a grocery market in the heart of this city.

The fire wrecked the foods market at 142 State street, just off Ferry street.

The flames began in the basement of the three-story brick building, firemen said. The two upper floors were vacant.

The cause was not determined. There was no estimate of the loss.

David Hogben, one of the firemen, was admitted to St. Clare's Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. He was reported in satisfactory condition. Thirteen others were treated at a hospital and released.

Catches Fender

A. Benton Grene, 71, of Woodstock, was operating his car on Tannery Brook road, Woodstock, about 4:30 p. m. yesterday when his right front fender caught on the bumper of a parked car owned by Dr. Albert Weiss of Perth Amboy, N. J., according to a report in the Ulster county sheriff's office. The right front fender of the Greene vehicle was "nipped" and the front bumper and grill of the Weiss car damaged, it was reported.

Agree on Work Contract

Albany, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—The Consolidated Metal Products Corp. and the AFL International Assn. of Machinists have agreed on a contract, ending a seven-week strike. The union's Local 1860, which bargains for about 15 employes, voted yesterday to accept the contract. It provides for a 15-cent hourly pay increase effective immediately and another 5 cents next June 1. The new wage scales run from $1.38 ot $2.42 hourly.

Savannah Editor Dies

Savannah, Ga., July 19 (AP)—William Joseph Robertson, executive editor of the Savannah News, died in a hospital here early today following a brain operation. He was 67. He was born in Fincastle Va., and began his newspaper career in 1912 as a reporter on the Roanoke (Va.) Times. He later served as city editor and managing editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, and also worked on papers in Delaware and Pennsylvania.

Befriends Coyote

Dallas, July 19 (AP)—About six weeks ago Mrs. Margie Lyons found a shivering, soaking-wet puppy on the street. She took it home, gave it the best of food and medicine, and watched happily as her new pet tried to make friends with her tiny chihuahua. This week Mrs. Lyons took her two dogs to a veterinarian for their rabies vaccinations. It was then she learned her new pet is a wild coyote, not a dog.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

and Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Secretary of State Dulles and other American officials also were present.

Reporters were stopped at the heavily guarded gate of the Eisenhower villa. They later got some information about what went on at the dinner from White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

HE SAID the President offered a champagne toast to his opposite number in the Soviet government, President Klementi Voroshilov of the Soviet Presidium, who is not taking part in the Geneva talks. Then Bulganin toasted Eisenhower, touching his glass to the President's.

Hagerty said the two toasts were substantially the same — that the conference would be a "great success and the conferees will continue to work for world peace."

Eisenhower told a Washington news conference recently that if he and Zhukov could get together at the Geneva talks, they might accomplish something toward establishing better relations between the United States and Russia.

'Great Victory'

Richmond, Vt., July 19 (AP)—A special federal tribunal did the expected here yesterday and ordered Prince Edward County, Va., to end racial segregation in its public schools. But the court set no specific time limit for compliance with its order and supporters of segregation immediately claimed a "great victory." Lawyers for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, who had asked the court to make desegregation effective in September, said the special court granted "the substance" of their requests.

12 Soviets Take

dealing wtih peace. He declared that if the Soviet Union and the United States live in peace together no one will dare attempt to start a war.

Howard Hill, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, proposed to Matskevich that trade between the United States and the Soviet Union be greatly expanded. He suggested export of Iowa farm products to the U.S.S.R.

EARLIER yesterday the Russians sat attentively in the living room of Richard and Verda Alleman and listened to them answer questions on how they run their farm.

The Russians seem very conscious of questions of cost and profit. They wanted to know many details of the family economy of the Allemans.

They had toured the farm and had been entertained in the Allemans' front yard with lemonade and cookies.

It wasn't clear whether or not the Russians were convinced when the Allemans explained in answer to their questions that they had no hired help on their 160 acre farm.

Three Fliers Serious

Burlington, Vt., July 19 (AP)—Three servicemen were in serious condition today as a result of the crash of a B-26 medium bomber in a field off Route 2 during a thunderstorm yesterday. The injured are: Air Force 2nd Lt. Frank C. Button, 23, of Watkins Glen, N. Y., pilot; Army Reserve Staff Sgt. G. M. Button, the pilot's brother and passenger on the plane, and Air Force 1st Lt. Ex-Policeman Held For Wife's Murder

Sebring, Fla., July 19 (AP)—Thomas W. Mann Jr. has been charged with first degree murder in the 7-month-old death of his wife, Beverly.

The murder warrant was sworn out last night after Mann admitted the murder and led officers to his wife's shallow grave.

In a statement, Mann said he strangled his 26-year-old wife in the crook of his right arm Dec. 7. The body was found in a grave about 200 yards from a sandy trail.

Sheriff Pat Coker of Highlands county signed the affidavit for the murder charge.

Mann, a 33-year-old former Miami policeman, went with his attorney, Mark O'Quin of Miami, to the office of State Atty. Gunter Stephenson in Winter Haven to make the statement that cleared up the case.

The couple vanished Dec. 6, 1954, from their small home at Miami. Mann's car was found abandoned in Tampa Christmas Day, but no trace of the couple was found.

Port Ewen Men

Gilligan boat, Mrs. Horvers said, they were "so exhausted" it took two men to lift each of them from the water.

SHE SAID another five minutes and it might have been too late, according to reports she received from the search party.

The men were transferred from the Gilligan boat to the tanker lifeboat and returned to the vessel.

Mrs. Horvers said the members of the search party reported that Strosky had gone in for a swim to cool off and got a cramp. Cornelius then grabbed a life preserver and plunged in after him.

Destination of the Dormoset is Albany, it was reported.

Vehicles Damaged

A two-car collision about 4:30 p. m. Saturday at the junction between Route 28 and 28A resulting in minor vehicular damage, has been reported to the Ulster county sheriff's office. The collision involved two 1954 passenger cars, one operated by Frederick Wooton, 49, of Newburgh, and the other by Mrs. Gloria Conerty, 24, of Jackson Heights, L. I., according to the report. The left front fender of the Wooton car and the right front fender strip of the other vehicle were reported damaged.

Troop-Carrier Base Planned In Westchester

Purchase, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—The air force proposes construction of a three-million-dollar reserve troop-carrier squadron base at Westchester county airport here.

Maj. Gen. Roger J. Browne, commander of the First Air Force, told county officials yesterday:

"That squadron might well spell the difference between life and death for citizens of the Westchester-White Plains area in the event of an atomic attack."

BROWNE SAID the basing of 16 large "boxcar" troop-carrier planes at the airport here would permit speedy evacuation of personnel and the flying in of critically needed medicines and supplies.

Four suggested sites for the proposed 40-acre installation — on which the government would build a maintenance hangar, an apron and appurtenances — will be studied by air force and county engineers.

Two of the sites are on the western side of the 690-acre airport, wholly on county property. The two others are east of the airport boundary in Greenwich, Conn.

PLANS CALL for the proposed base to be staffed by a reserve complement of 125 officers and 455 airmen and a permanent party of 9 officers, 25 airmen and 133 civilian workers.

Browne estimated at yesterday's conference that spending by reservists and the permanent party and the purchase of various operating items would add more than one million dollars annually to the local economy.

The 137th Fighter Interceptor Squadron of the Air National Guard has been based here since 1948. It is now equipped with jet planes.

Compromise Proposed On Windfall Profits

New York, July 19 (AP)—Government officials say they are trying to get the builders and operators of a huge Brooklyn housing project to pay back alleged "windfall profits" amounting to some three million dollars.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Albert Buschmann said yesterday government officials have been negotiating for a week with lawyers for corporations that control the project, known as Farragut Gardens. He said the government is demanding return of the full three million dollars but the lawyers are seeking a compromise.

The negotiations have been adjourned until Aug. 10 to give the government time to consider the proposed compromise.

33 Firemen Felled By Smoke Monday

Schenectady, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Smoke felled 33 firemen last night as they battled a fire in a grocery market in the heart of this city.

The fire wrecked the foods market at 142 State street, just off Ferry street.

The flames began in the basement of the three-story brick building, firemen said. The two upper floors were vacant.

The cause was not determined. There was no estimate of the loss.

David Hogben, one of the firemen, was admitted to St. Clare's Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. He was reported in satisfactory condition. Thirteen others were treated at a hospital and released.

Catches Fender

A. Benton Grene, 71, of Woodstock, was operating his car on Tannery Brook road, Woodstock, about 4:30 p. m. yesterday when his right front fender caught on the bumper of a parked car owned by Dr. Albert Weiss of Perth Amboy, N. J., according to a report in the Ulster county sheriff's office. The right front fender of the Greene vehicle was "nipped" and the front bumper and grill of the Weiss car damaged, it was reported.

Albany, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—The Consolidated Metal Products Corp. and the AFL International Assn. of Machinists have agreed on a contract, ending a seven-week strike. The union's Local 1860, which bargains for about 15 employes, voted yesterday to accept the contract. It provides for a 15-cent hourly pay increase effective immediately and another 5 cents next June 1. The new wage scales run from $1.38 ot $2.42 hourly.

He was born in Fincastle Va., and began his newspaper career in 1912 as a reporter on the Roanoke (Va.) Times. He later served as city editor and managing editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, and also worked on papers in Delaware and Pennsylvania.

Befriends Coyote

Dallas, July 19 (AP)—About six weeks ago Mrs. Margie Lyons found a shivering, soaking-wet puppy on the street. She took it home, gave it the best of food and medicine, and watched happily as her new pet tried to make friends with her tiny chihuahua. This week Mrs. Lyons took her two dogs to a veterinarian for their rabies vaccinations. It was then she learned her new pet is a wild coyote, not a dog.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

and Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Secretary of State Dulles and other American officials also were present.

Reporters were stopped at the heavily guarded gate of the Eisenhower villa. They later got some information about what went on at the dinner from White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

HE SAID the President offered a champagne toast to his opposite number in the Soviet government, President Klementi Voroshilov of the Soviet Presidium, who is not taking part in the Geneva talks. Then Bulganin toasted Eisenhower, touching his glass to the President's.

Hagerty said the two toasts were substantially the same — that the conference would be a "great success and the conferees will continue to work for world peace."

Eisenhower told a Washington news conference recently that if he and Zhukov could get together at the Geneva talks, they might accomplish something toward establishing better relations between the United States and Russia.

'Great Victory'

Richmond, Vt., July 19 (AP)—A special federal tribunal did the expected here yesterday and ordered Prince Edward County, Va., to end racial segregation in its public schools. But the court set no specific time limit for compliance with its order and supporters of segregation immediately claimed a "great victory." Lawyers for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, who had asked the court to make desegregation effective in September, said the special court granted "the substance" of their requests.

dealing wtih peace. He declared that if the Soviet Union and the United States live in peace together no one will dare attempt to start a war.

Howard Hill, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, proposed to Matskevich that trade between the United States and the Soviet Union be greatly expanded. He suggested export of Iowa farm products to the U.S.S.R.

EARLIER yesterday the Russians sat attentively in the living room of Richard and Verda Alleman and listened to them answer questions on how they run their farm.

The Russians seem very conscious of questions of cost and profit. They wanted to know many details of the family economy of the Allemans.

They had toured the farm and had been entertained in the Allemans' front yard with lemonade and cookies.

It wasn't clear whether or not the Russians were convinced when the Allemans explained in answer to their questions that they had no hired help on their 160 acre farm.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Expert Loses, Knows Too Much

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

This column usually urges you to become as good a bridge player as possible, but today's hand shows the other side of the picture. Any average player would make six no-trump with today's hand, but an expert found a logical way to go down!

West opened the king of clubs and declarer cautiously refused the first trick. West continued with the queen of clubs, and dummy took the ace. East discarded a small spade, thus giving declarer the beginning of a count.

Declarer next took the three top spades, discarding a club from the dummy. West also discarded a club on the third spade, and South therefore knew that West had begun with exactly five clubs and two spades.

South's next move was to try out the diamonds. He led to the queen of diamonds, cashed the ace of hearts, and then took the ace and king of diamonds. West discarded another low club, thus giving South a complete count on the hand. It was clear that West's six red cards were (to begin with) four hearts and two diamonds.

Most average players wouldn't notice all of this. They would cash the top hearts in the hope of dropping the jack. This plan would succeed, and they would make the slam contract.

The expert South knew that West had started with four hearts and that East had started with only two hearts. The odds were therefore 2 to 1 that West had the jack of hearts. Hence South finessed dummy's ten of hearts and lost the last four tricks! East took the jack of hearts, the jack of diamonds, and two spades, setting the contract four tricks..

Reade Is Indicted On 2 Murder Charges

Mayville, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—A special session of the Chautauqua grand jury has indicted Joseph Reade on two charges of first degree murder. Reade is accused of raping and murdering his brother's wife and 19-month-old daughter.

The 26-year-old Reade showed little emotion as Judge Alger A. Williams entered for him a mandatory plea of innocent to the charges and appointed counsel.

Thirteen witnesses were heard in yesterday's session, including the defendant's brother, Francis. No trial date was set and Reade was returned to the county jail here.

Francis Reade returned to his home in Jamestown Tuesday morning, after finishing his night work, to find the bodies of his wife, Beverley, 26, and daughter, Cheryl Lynn, bloody and beaten.

Police picked up his brother, Joseph, a short time later and said that he admitted the double rape-slaying.

Scouter Training Completed by 12

Leonard W. Herrick, chairman of the Leadership Training Committee of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America announced that twelve troop scouters have successfully completed the advanced training course held at the Council camp, Camp TriMount in East Jewett over the past weekend. They are Robert Hillis, scoutmaster of Troop 6. First Baptist Church, Kingston; Jonathan Clark, scoutmaster, Edward Granberg, assistant scoutmaster and Rodger Snyder, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 8, First Presbyterian Church, Kingston; Robert C. Tremper, scoutmaster and Rodney Williams, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 11, St. James Methodist Church, Kingston; John B. Helmer, assistant scoutmaster, Troop 17, Rosendale American Legion; Carl Wiegert, Sr., scoutmaster, troop 19, VFW, Kingston; Robert Freer, scoutmaster, Troop 26, Port Ewen Reformed Church; Anthony Zinnanti, Sr., scoutmaster, and Ivan Riley, assistant scoutmaster, Troop 44, BPOE, Catskill; and Vincent F. Sutherland, scoutmaster, Troop 76, American Legion, Wallkill.

THE SCOUT EXECUTIVE, George V. Dennis, conducted the course and presented the certificates to the participating scouters. This course is a required one for the three year training award toward which these men are working. The basic training course for scout leaders must have been completed before taking this advanced training.

This course is the first in a series to be presented throughout the summer and fall seasons. The next training will be a weekend commissioner's training course to be conducted August 6-7 at Camp Tri-Mount.

The expenses of training courses are taken from the operating budget of the Rip Van Winkle Council which receives its operating funds through the Kingston Area Community Chest and its own finance campaign now being conducted throughout the two county area outside the area covered by the Community Chest.

Singapore Chinese Watch Red Influence With Alarm

Singapore, July 19 (AP)—Thousands of gray-haired and wrinkled Chinese are watching their younger generation today with distress.

Many are descendants of the first pigtailed coolies who voyaged here is search of fortune in the British colony of Singapore and protectorate of Malaya.

Then the coolie toiled for the white man in the hope he one day would own a tin mine or rubber estate and become a millionaire. Sometimes he succeeded. Singapore and Malaya have about 300 Chinese millionaires (a million Malay dollars is about $330,000 U. S.).

But today such organizations as the Communist "People's Anti-British League" have given young Chinese a bigger goal—to drive the white man out, by violence if need be.

DISCIPLINE generally is lax among the 80,000 boys and girls in the 240 private Chinese schools in this colony of a million people. Communist influence—outside the curriculum—is common. The same influence is noted in trade unions.

In two months, the city has been ridden with a series of strikes, 94 at once, and teen-age Chinese have joined in bloody riots.

The trouble marked the beginning of the administration of a new chief minister, David Marshall. His new Socialist Labor front party won by a landslide in the April elections, ousting the rightwing Progressive party's government.

MARSHALL, a genial, pipe-smoking criminal lawyer of 47, swayed with the masses with slogans like "down with colonialism" and "down with capitalism."

The present constitution provides that, for the time being, three of nine ministers are to be British colonial officials but that Singapore people are to take over the full government gradually.

Campaigning on March 29, Marshall called for self-government now. "We are ready for it," he claimed. On March 3 he had forecast mass rebellion in 20 years "if the wealthy and privileged groups" were left in power. He said:

"Such a government will also help the Communists to exploit the antagonism of the masses. A Socialist government would be able to avoid social and political calamities in this country."

IN HIS FIRST address to the legislative assembly April 26, he complained that the manual laborer earned only 31 Malay dollars a week ($10.20, U. S.) here "in the 10th busiest port in the world, the richest country in all Asia." He declared this caused "hatred so bitter that it cannot distinguish between the system and the rulers."

He said he would abolish the emergency regulations—"police laws," he called them—brought into force in June 1948 to deal with the Communists. But a month later he had to use them himself to jail eight strike agitators.

On the other hand, he had wooed the Chinese by calling them the colony's body politic. He settled a riotous bus dispute by having the company re-employ 300 Chinese workers it had fired for indiscipline. He canceled an order for the ouster of Chinese student leaders who had taken part in the riot. These actions provoked criticism.

POLICE COMMISSIONER Nigel Morris has argued that the emergency regulations are necessary so that wily Communists can be held on suspicion. He says there are 2,000 Communists and fellow travelers in Singapore.

There are only 400 hard-core Reds among the Chinese students, say officers of the special political branch. But the number grows yearly.

Meanwhile Communists have crept into the extreme Left-Wing People's Action party, which has three men in the legislative Assembly. And 90 per cent of the population is Chinese Red students campaigning for that party among these Chinese could be a real threat.

If the labor front governments rails to cope with this threat British and colonial troops are deemed certain to take over to protect this key spot in southeast Asia from going Red There are 11,000 already here, and others could be brought in quickly.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Expert Loses, Knows Too Much

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

This column usually urges you to become as good a bridge player as possible, but today's hand shows the other side of the picture. Any average player would make six no-trump with today's hand, but an expert found a logical way to go down!

West opened the king of clubs and declarer cautiously refused the first trick. West continued with the queen of clubs, and dummy took the ace. East discarded a small spade, thus giving declarer the beginning of a count.

Declarer next took the three top spades, discarding a club from the dummy. West also discarded a club on the third spade, and South therefore knew that West had begun with exactly five clubs and two spades.

South's next move was to try out the diamonds. He led to the queen of diamonds, cashed the ace of hearts, and then took the ace and king of diamonds. West discarded another low club, thus giving South a complete count on the hand. It was clear that West's six red cards were (to begin with) four hearts and two diamonds.

Most average players wouldn't notice all of this. They would cash the top hearts in the hope of dropping the jack. This plan would succeed, and they would make the slam contract.

The expert South knew that West had started with four hearts and that East had started with only two hearts. The odds were therefore 2 to 1 that West had the jack of hearts. Hence South finessed dummy's ten of hearts and lost the last four tricks! East took the jack of hearts, the jack of diamonds, and two spades, setting the contract four tricks.

Some days it doesn't pay to know too much about anything!

Reade Is Indicted On 2 Murder Charges

Mayville, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—A special session of the Chautauqua grand jury has indicted Joseph Reade on two charges of first degree murder. Reade is accused of raping and murdering his brother's wife and 19-month-old daughter.

The 26-year-old Reade showed little emotion as Judge Alger A. Williams entered for him a mandatory plea of innocent to the charges and appointed counsel.

Thirteen witnesses were heard in yesterday's session, including the defendant's brother, Francis. No trial date was set and Reade was returned to the county jail here.

Francis Reade returned to his home in Jamestown Tuesday morning, after finishing his night work, to find the bodies of his wife, Beverley, 26, and daughter, Cheryl Lynn, bloody and beaten.

Police picked up his brother, Joseph, a short time later and said that he admitted the double rape-slaying.

Woman Identifies Wrong Bank Suspect

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—When police took bank teller Mrs. Wendy Ruhland, 19, to headquarters yesterday to try and identify the man that had just held up the Buffalo Savings Bank, she came up with an identification.

She pointed out the picture of John J. Harlow, 30, of Toronto, Ont. Police dismissed him as a suspect.

He's in the Erie county jail in connection with another bank holdup here last month.
